BAN ON KLAN PLACED BY ADVENTISTS

Southern Conference in Definite Stand Against Taking Membership

Taking a definite stand against membership in the Ku Klux Klan, members of the religious liberty institute, now being held here by the Southern California conference of Seventh-day Adventists, today declared that all Adventist congregations in Southern California will be instructed to remain clear of the hooded order.

The issue, brought before the institute this morning in the form of a question by a Glendale member, created a general discussion. The Seventh-day Adventists, as an organization, is opposed to all secret orders, it was declared, and because of that fact the Ku Klux Klan is officially taboo.

Members attending the institute here are clergymen from all over Southern California, as well as representatives of the Pacific Union conference, which has jurisdiction over the denominational work in California, Arizona, Nevada and Western Utah. They will carry back with them the ban against membership in the Klan, said to have been officially recognized for the first time at today's session.

Against "Blue Laws" Developing strong opposition to "blue laws" and Sunday closing ordinances, the institute today also declared the Seventh-day Adventists opposed religious study in the public schools or releasing of students during school hours for periods of religious study elsewhere.

Seventh-day Adventists hold to the belief that Saturday, the seventh day of the week, is the day of rest, or the Sabbath, while Sunday is merely the first day of the week. The one was selected by the Almighty, Elder C. H. Edwards, Pomona, pointed out today, while Sunday, he said, is designated by man-made law.

"Is it right to persist in Sunday labor if a civil law prohibits?" Elder Parmelee was asked. "Show Good Judgment" "We follow the instructions given by the highest authorities in the church," he answered, "but where Sunday laws are enforced in communities Seventh-day Adventists should show good judgment and refrain from labor."

Declaring that those who observe Sunday, the first day of the week, as the Sabbath, bear "the mark of the Beast," Elder Edwards declared.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS

SANTA ROSA, Cal., May 26.—Gift of two scholarships, one in the University of California and one in Stanford university, by Ephraim Weiss, wealthy oculist, was announced today. Weiss has already decided a valuable lot in Berkeley to the two universities and will erect on it a $65,000 apartment house to insure an income sufficient to support the two scholarships.

SKULL FRACTURED

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—Said to have been attacked by a member of a party of gay revelers near a roadhouse in Hollywood today, Carlyle Graham, son of Ralph Graham, Los Angeles attorney, was suffering from a fractured skull, reported to have been inflicted by a blow from a bottle. Police launched an investigation.

READY FOR CONCLAVE

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—Traveling 2964 miles by water, representatives of Abou temple, Panama Canal Zone, arrived here today to attend the 1925 Mystic Shrine convocation next week.

Notice to Advertisers

Because of the fact that Saturday, May 30, will be generally observed in Glendale as Memorial day, with business houses closing, The Glendale Evening News will issue but one edition on that day and it will be delivered to subscribers early Saturday morning. Therefore, this newspaper asks for the cooperation of all desiring advertising space in Saturday's paper. Reservations for space must be made not later than noon on Friday.

Speed Demons Quality for Auto Classic

INDIANAPOLIS, May 26.—Earl Cooper, at the wheel of a Miller-motored junior eight, drove the ten miles qualification test this afternoon for the Indianapolis 500-mile speed classic to be run off Memorial day for an average of 110.48 miles an hour. His time for the four laps was 5:25.83.

Another speedy elimination trial spin was turned in by Ralph Hepburn, driving a Miller special, who negotiated the qualification distance in 5:31.83 for an average of 108.48 miles an hour.

To qualify the drivers must average eighty-five miles an hour for ten miles.

Frank Elliott, in a Miller special, was the third to qualify, clipping the four laps in 5:43.15 for an average of 104.91 and Ray Carens, also in a Miller special, was the fourth to qualify, circling the tracks for four laps in 5:45.6 for an average of 104.16 miles an hour.

STATE ORDERS ARREST OF WITNESS

Fugitive Warrant Issued For Missing Evidence In Shepherd Case

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—A fugitive warrant for the arrest of Robert R. White, missing state witness in the William D. Shepherd case in Chicago, was sworn out before Magistrate Pennock here today by Captain of Detective Theodore Wood, following the receipt of a telegram from State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe of Chicago.

Crowe's telegram stated that warrants had been sworn out in Chicago charging White with the theft of the car in which he left Chicago several days ago. The telegram said the warrants would be forwarded here, if White is apprehended.

After an extensive search of this city and nearby communities, local police were convinced, they said, that White was not here, despite the receipt by Chicago authorities of a letter postmarked Philadelphia, alleged to have been written by White.

Police here had abandoned the search but when the warrant was sworn out at Crowe's instigation, it was renewed immediately.

Accuses Missing Witness Of Making $5000 Demand

CHICAGO, May 26.—A charge that Robert White, missing witness, demanded $5,000 from defense attorneys for repudiation of his statement that he had seen William D. Shepherd at Charles C. Faiman's National University of Science, was hurled into the Shepherd-McClintock maze at the trial of Shepherd on a charge of murder, swung into the closing session of its eight almost futile days, this afternoon.

John J. Kelly, insurance man, and close friend of White, voiced the indictment. He declared White told Arthur Byrne, investigator for the Shepherd forces, that for $5,000 he would make an affidavit declaring that Shepherd never had been around Faiman's school where the state charges he obtained the typhoid germs with which he is said to have inoculated William Nelson McClintock, his ward. The following day, Kelly said, White disappeared.

An effort to obtain further information regarding White was

TENTED JUDGE TO RULE ON EVOLUTION

Prospects Of Huge Crowd At Scopes Trial Prompt Jurist's Suggestion

DAYTON, Tenn., May 26.—With the expectation that at least 20,000 persons would gather here July 10 for the trial of John T. Scopes, charged with teaching evolution to his high school students, in violation of the Tennessee law, plans were being discussed here today to build a vast temporary auditorium to handle the crowd.

Judge John T. Raulston, who will preside at the trial, believes that the hearing will last for weeks and that some of the attorneys, such as William Jennings Bryan and the leading defense lawyers, will speak for two or three days.

"My suggestion," said Judge Raulston today, "is that a roof be built over a large vacant lot, perhaps the Dayton baseball field, and seats be built on tiers."

"At the very least the place should seat 20,000 people. In my estimation, the trial is of such interest and importance, I believe it fair to give both sides ample time to present their cases. Also, I have set a date when all universities and schools will be through, so that scientists and other school men will be able to act as expert witnesses."

Verdict Expected It is believed the judge's plans will be carried out.

When asked for his opinion of the indictment by the grand jury, Scopes said "the verdict is I had expected. I am pleased with it. The question involved is one that will have to be decided some time so it might as well be now. I believe that the study of evolution is needed to reveal to one the glories of God and his work."

FRENCH EVACUATE

PARIS, May 26.—France has been forced to evacuate thirty beleaguered outposts in the Ougha sector, the foreign office announced today. In a strong effort to protect Fez, capital and largest city in Morocco, the French have concentrated both their regular and native troops in Bihane and Tounet, according to the communiqué. These two heavily garrisoned posts control the road to Fez.

INSURRECTION!

Lions Gather For Session In San Diego

SAN DIEGO, May 26.—Nearly a thousand members of the Lions International club were here today for the opening of the annual convention of Lionesses (wives of members) were also in attendance for the meeting, which will continue until Saturday.

Prominent Lions present include Fred J. Johns, district governor; Jack Riley, deputy district governor, and Ray L. Riley, member of the board of directors of the national organization.

Today was given over to registrations and "get-together" jollity. Tomorrow the delegates will get down to the business of discussing the nation's business, and particularly that of Southern California.

W. B. Kelly, president of the Glendale den of Lions, accompanied by Mrs. Kelly, headed the Glendale delegation. The Glendale delegation is making its headquarters at the Grant hotel.

RUM RUNNERS DEFEATED IS CLAIM

Commissioner Haynes Says He Has 'Em On Run After Inspecting Detroit

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Bootleggers are on the run as a result of the government's land and naval warfare against liquor runners, Roy A. Haynes, prohibition commissioner, declared today. With all federal enforcement agencies working together harmoniously, Haynes predicted a "successful outcome" of the rum war.

Haynes has just completed an inspection of the Detroit district. The prohibition unit has been provided with a number of steamboats to assist in patrolling the river.

Haynes' report to the treasury disclosed that the situation around Detroit is serious and that drastic steps must be taken by the government to enforce the dry law in that vicinity.

The coast guard has a dozen or more patrol boats in action on Lake Ontario. More boats are under construction and will be placed in service within a few weeks, according to the treasury.

Beer Trade Booms

Reports showed that the movement of beer and ale over Erie and Ontario is heavy. Hard liquor smuggling, however, is not extensive, reports said.

Statements from El Paso, Texas, quoting Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews to the effect that the anti-smuggling fleet on the Atlantic and Pacific was to be increased to 100 boats, was declared at the treasury to be erroneous.

The government is now operating more than 300 cutters, destroyers and patrol boats on these sectors. New boats will be launched within a few weeks and it was anticipated that by the middle of summer 400 rum chasers would be in action.

JUDGE NAMED

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Coolidge today appointed Wallace McCamant of Portland, Ore., as United States circuit judge for the Ninth circuit district. McCamant nominated Mr. Coolidge for the vice-presidency at the 1920 Republican convention.

JAPANESE STARVES

SWINDLER NABBED

MANILA, May 26.—Lucio Torralba, cockpit king, charged with having swindled the Yokohama special bank out of half a million pesos, was caught here today in the home of his sweetheart after a month's chase.

CITY HALL TO HAVE ANNEX FOR POLICE

Other Departments Also Will Be Housed In Building Ordered By Council

A modern fireproof city hall annex to house the Glendale police department, the engineering and building departments and the city planning commission will be erected directly in the rear of the present city hall, construction work to start next month. Bids for the building will be opened by the City Council on June 11, it was decided at today's session of the council.

Immediate action by the council to obtain more adequate quarters was made necessary by the crowded condition of the present city hall and by the condemnation of the city jail quarters on Saturday by the Los Angeles county grand jury.

The grand jury investigating jail conditions in all municipalities throughout the county branded the unit for use as a city jail the Glendale prison quarters. The grand jury visited the local institution last week and returned their findings to the City Council on Saturday, it was revealed today.

Annex as Planned

The new annex will be fifty feet wide and about 150 feet in length. Erected on the vacant property located between the city hall and the public service building, there will be approximately eighteen feet between the old city hall and the annex.

The entire basement will be occupied by the police department. Six of the most modern type cells will be installed, four for men and two for women. Cells now located in fire stations will be eliminated. A modern record room, detective bureau and station headquarters will be constructed in the basement, as well as various offices for the chief of police, his secretary, motorcycle division and other departments.

Bonds Unnecessary

The entire work will be done without a bond issue and without increasing the tax rate on the 1925-26 budget, by using entirely funds saved on the 1924-25 budget through economical administration of the city and now placed in the surplus. No estimate of the cost of the annex could be made today, although City Manager V. B. Stone said the cost will be well within the amount of the surplus. The city expects to save $330 per month, when the annex is completed.

Says World Better Now

This is a picture of MRS. MARY PAIGE, born in 1818, who says that the girls of today are as good as those in her girlhood. The world is getting better all the time, she says. Mrs. Paige is active daily and takes a keen interest in life.

Woman, 107, Says Girls Of Today Good As Those In Her Younger Days

JOLIET, Ill., May 26.—She doesn't believe girls are any worse today than they were in her time, and she doesn't sigh for the "good old days."

Mrs. Mary Paige, born in 1818, avers "people are kinder today than they used to be, and the world is getting better all the time."

Mrs. Paige's husband died recently at 105. Since then she has lived in Joliet with her daughter, 82. And at 107 she is active daily, assisting in the housework and taking a keen interest in life.

ANOTHER QUAKE

TOKIO, May 26.—An earthquake shook the Tajima district of southeastern Nippon island this morning, including the towns of Toyooka and Kinokuni, which were all but destroyed by last Saturday's shock. Several damaged buildings were tumbled down, alarming the populace, but no casualties were reported.

JOE TANKO MOVES

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—Joe Tanko, the "phantom bandit," was being sought in San Mateo county today, following reports that he had been seen there last night. Poses were immediately organized and a man-hunt for the San Quentin fugitive murderer continued throughout the night.

TROTZKY WINS FAVOR

LONDON, May 26.—Leon Trotsky, recently deposed as a Soviet leader, will be appointed a member of the supreme economic council as director of the electrical industry, or president of the concessions committee, a dispatch from Moscow today said.

ALBANIA AT WAR

LONDON, May 26.—Dispatches from Tirana, Albania, confirm continued fighting today in Southern Albania between insurrectionists in the Toska tribe and government troops, according to Belgrade dispatches to the Central News.

DICTATOR TO END

MADRID, May 26.—Spain's return to constitutional government and the end of the military dictatorship seemed foreshadowed today in a speech by General Primo De Rivera, military director, in which he said constitutional guarantees might soon be established.

ARCTIC STORM THREATENS RETURN OF FLYERS

Collapsible Dirigible May Be Used In Attempt To Effect Rescue

BULLETIN OSLO, May 26.—Captain Raold Amundsen and his companions on the polar flight had been gone more than five days without word as dusk approached tonight. There was no news of the explorers here late tonight.

OSLO, May 26.—The arctic regions are threatened with storms, and if the Amundsen-Ellsworth flyers landed at the North pole for observations the party will be compelled to return immediately, government officials declared today, and added after the statement the significant words "if able."

No word from Amundsen. That was the only answer the government could give on this, the fifth day since Amundsen and Lieutenant Ellsworth hopped off from Spitzbergen in two airplanes last Thursday for what was supposed to have been a sixteen-hour continuous flight to the pole.

Conflicting reports are reaching Oslo as to what the weather has been at the pole. It is generally conceded, however, that snow has been falling and that the great stretch of sea and frozen land has been shrouded in fog.

There has been a recent fall of snow, and it was pointed out that this would make it difficult for the Amundsen-Ellsworth party to return either by air or afoot. The newspaper Aftenposten said the American discussion for relief of the expedition was "misplaced, but well meant."

Young Explorer Planning To Assume Rescuer's Role

LONDON, May 26.—Grettit Al-garsson, young explorer who hoped to race in his collapsible dirigible against Captain Raold Amundsen's airplanes for the honor of first reaching the pole through the air, may assume the role of rescuer, it appeared today. Airship difficulties have delayed his departure from Liverpool, but he may send his ship on ahead to Spitzbergen and follow in his blimp.

The young explorer whose plan

LATEST NEWS

EUROPEAN ENTANGLEMENTS TABOOED

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The government's policy not to become entangled in internal European affairs was reaffirmed at the White House today. It was stated officially that President Coolidge does not see how the United States can participate in the proposed European security pact, now under discussion abroad.

TWINS GIVEN 100 YEARS FOR GIRL ATTACK

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—Sentences of 100 years in prison were imposed today on John and James Dacey, 24-year-old twins, convicted of an attack on Josephine Price, by Judge Elliott Craig, who denounced their crime as "worse than murder."

RUM DRIVE OPENS ON LAKES

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Three law enforcement agencies of the federal government—the coast guard, prohibition unit and special agents of the customs service—are being concentrated along the Great Lakes and Canadian borders to check a heavy tide of beer and ale which is flowing into the United States, the treasury announced today. Control of the Detroit district was placed in charge of the prohibition unit, which has the cooperation of the Michigan state constabulary and special customs agents to check the movement of intoxicants over the Detroit river.

'STRANGLER' LEWIS' MAT TITLE UPHELD

CHICAGO, May 26.—"Strangler" Lewis is heavyweight champion of the world and can so style himself, according to a ruling today by Federal Judge Hugo M. Friend. Judge Friend held that the court had no jurisdiction in the suit brought by Stanislaus Zbyszko, in which the latter sought to restrain Lewis from using the name champion. He ruled, however, that if the Polish wrestler's attorney could show proof where a circuit court judge had jurisdiction he would reopen the case.

SOLDIER DEAD CEREMONIES ARRANGED

Complete Program At Forest
Lawn Memorial Park Is Announced By City

The complete program of events at Forest Lawn Memorial park on Saturday when the memory of America's soldier dead of three wars will be honored, was announced today through Glendale Community Service. The full program was arranged at a meeting held at the Wilson Intermediate school last night when representatives of twelve patriotic organizations of the city attended. Thomas M. Barrett, patriotic director of the G. A. R., presided.

One of the outstanding features of the program will be the "symbolic grave," which will be beautifully decorated for the occasion. Preceding the memorial exercises at the cemetery, a parade in which twenty organizations will participate will form at Colorado street west of Glendale avenue.

Elks Band to Lead
The march to Forest Lawn will commence at 1:30 o'clock with the Glendale Elks band leading. Glendale post American Legion will furnish automobiles for all members of the Grand Army and the Women's Relief corps.

Other organizations desiring to take part in the parade were asked to communicate with Col. John D. Fraser, chief of police, who will act as marshal of the day. During the parade and ceremonies at Forest Lawn airplanes from Clover field will fly over the city dropping spring flowers from the fuselage.

Afternoon Program
Following is the afternoon program for Memorial day in full:
Patriotic numbers by the Elks band; singing of "America, the Beautiful" by school children, led by Miss Elsa Brenneemann; singing of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" by the audience led by R. Ernest Tucker; invocation by Rev. Cowan; G. A. R. ritualistic service; Gettysburg address by James Sargent; baritone solo by Glenn R. Dolberg; addresses by Benjamin F. Bledsoe, William H. Reeves and Frank Weller, representing the G. A. R., Spanish-American Veterans and American Legion; selections by the Glendale Drum and Bugle corps; "Star Spangled Banner" by the audience; ceremony of the symbolic grave with R. Ernest Tucker in charge; salute by Fort McArthur firing squad; benediction by Rev. Cowan.

Morning Program
During the morning Glendale patriotic societies will decorate soldiers' graves at Grand View Memorial park.
Organizations which have already agreed to march follow: Spanish War Veterans and auxiliary; Royal Neighbors; Glendale council, Girl Scouts; Glendale city schools; Verdugo Hills council, Boy Scouts of America; Daughters of Veterans; Sons of Veterans and auxiliary; Tuesday Afternoon club; Glendale fire department; Glendale Rotary club; G. A. R.; Women's Relief corps; Glendale post, American Legion and auxiliary; Glendale City Council; Daughters of the Revolution, and Glendale Community Service.

CHURCHMEN HOLD TO AGED BELIEF

Presbytery Assembly Upholds Virgin Birth Doctrine Against Synod

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 26.—The ancient doctrine of the virgin birth was upheld here late this afternoon by the judicial committee in its report to the Presbyterian general assembly in the celebrated Gantz complaint against the synod of New York.

Striking directly at the action of both the New York Presbytery and the synod for its licensure of H. B. Van Duzen, the commissioner in his report remanded the case to the New York Presbytery. Its action will require the Presbytery to reconsider the licensing of Van Duzen. The decision of the commission was adopted unanimously by the general assembly.

Complaint of Dr. Walter B. Buchanan, and a minority of the body against the New York Presbytery for permitting continuance of the pastorate of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick in the first Presbyterian church, New York, until March 1, 1925, was rejected this afternoon by the judicial commission in its report to the general assembly here.

Fosdick Incident
Dr. Fosdick's retirement was ordered by the 1924 general assembly. The commission held dilatory action was not contempt of the general assembly order.
Two other complaints by the same minority against the New York Presbytery relative to receiving the Rev. C. G. Fuller into fellowship and the licensing of the Rev. Hamer Parker Hall were referred for investigation to the synod of New York.

The first three decisions were adopted by the assembly unanimously.
General Sir Ian Hamilton, famous as a soldier and litterateur, is a breeder of cattle.

NEW THOROUGHFARE SOUGHT IN ATWATER

Opening of Perlita Avenue Will Give
Access to Park Avenue District
And Eliminate Big Detour

Opening of Perlita avenue from Los Feliz boulevard to Park avenue, in order to afford a through thoroughfare from Atwater Park to the Park avenue district, will be projected through joint action of property owners in both districts, following a meeting of the Park Avenue Improvement association last night, when P. E. Lipscomb advanced the plan.

Motorists wishing to get to Park avenue from Atwater Park at present must detour around through Glendale via San Fernando road. Opening of Perlita avenue would give a direct through passage.

Petitions seeking the opening of the street will be circulated in the near future, Mr. Lipscomb said. The improvement will give a new paved boulevard through the Walnut grove section.

Protest On School Site

A fight to the finish to prevent building of a proposed new high school on the old Vitagraph studio site off Sunset boulevard was promised today by property owners of Atwater Park and the Ivanhoe Hills district who are supporting another site for the school, located between Monon, George, Childs and Tracy streets in the Ivanhoe section. Tentative approval of the school board has already been given in the Ivanhoe site, it was declared.

Property owners living in the Los Feliz and Vermont district are backing the Vitagraph site. The Ivanhoe Hills school property is approximately one mile from Atwater Park whereas the other proposed site would be a distance of more than three miles. Formal action favoring the Ivanhoe site will be taken by the Atwater Improvement association following a meeting of improvement association heads at 2119 Hyperion boulevard Wednesday night. C. L. Manning, chairman of the Atwater school committee will attend the meeting.

Advocates Bond Issue

P. E. Lipscomb advocated passage of the three major bond issues for new Glendale and Hyperion boulevard bridges, school tunnels and new branch libraries, which will appear on the ballot June 2 when he appeared before both the Atwater and Park avenue associations last night.
Election of Charles T. Wardlaw to the City Council from the first district was also urged before these associations by Mr. Lipscomb. Assurance of new bridges to relieve the Glendale boulevard traffic depends very largely on the election of Mr. Wardlaw, the speaker said. Rapid transportation at cheaper rates and adequate flood control measures to protect the lower valley and particularly the "bottle neck" south of Glendale, are promised by Mr. Wardlaw, Mr. Lipscomb said.

Await New Council

No effort to rush sidewalk installation on streets in the Atwater district between Glendale and Los Feliz boulevards will be made until the new City Council is seated, it was decided by property owners at the meeting of the Atwater Improvement association last night. After that time an effort to have the paving work done immediately will be made. No action will be taken under the present status for at least several months, it was reported.

Oppose New Highway

Glendale boulevard property owners and business men will oppose the proposed widening and extension of a new outlet through the Atwater district connecting with Glendale avenue in Glendale. Under a plan advanced by the Glendale Advancement association and with the approval of the Glendale Planning commission, Glendale avenue will be extended southwest from San Fernando road to Oxford street where the thoroughfare will connect with Turbun street, running along Tukey road to Castas avenue and thence to Silverlake boulevard.
Widening of Turbun and Castas and improvement of Silverlake boulevard is contemplated under the plan. Opposition will come from Glendale boulevard boosters, who maintain that widening of Glendale boulevard and installation of adequate Glendale and Hyperion boulevard bridges will solve the traffic problem more satisfactorily.

Rev. Wade Hamilton Is Roundtable Speaker

Glendale Roundtable club members heard Rev. Wade Hamilton, pastor of the First Baptist church at Burbank discuss "America's Place in the Program of World Peace" at their meeting today noon at the Egyptian Village cafe. Rev. Hamilton declared that America should take advantage of its opportunity to lead the entire world to peace at this time. Never before in history has the United States had the upper hand as it has today. America, at present, is in a position to see that whatever it demands is carried into effect, he said. Dr. L. L. Craven presided over the meeting.

DRUNK CHARGES

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—Frank Bruno, 15, was arrested here today charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated.

BRIAND URGES TOLERANCE WITH U.S.

France's Foreign Minister
Tells Senate American Constitution Just

By FRANK E. MASON
For International News Service.
PARIS, May 26.—A plea for tolerant understanding of America's constitutional limits as far as foreign affairs were concerned, was made to the French Senate today by Aristide Briand, minister of French foreign affairs.

"Most Frenchmen criticizing the United States," he said in his speech to the Senate, "are entirely ignorant of the American constitution."

Briand made his address in answer to a violent attack upon the attitude of the United States during the peace conference, made by Senator Goussus, in which the senator declared the refusal of the United States to sign the peace treaty was responsible for all of Europe's present troubles.

"Constitutionally the United States was loyal in refusing to sign at Versailles," Briand told the Senate. He also praised highly the American attitude of loyalty and friendship which he said was evident not only during the peace conference but also since that time.

Briand told the Senate that during the peace negotiations "we were warned the American Senate never would ratify the treaty."

CANYON HIGHWAY PLAN ANNOUNCED

Planning Commission Reports on Project to Connect Glendale Blvd.

Plans for a new highway through Tuna canyon, connecting with the extension of Glendale boulevard at La Crescenta, and running due west to Roscoe road in the San Fernando valley near Tujunga, opening up an entirely new entrance to the valley from Glendale, were announced today by T. W. Watson, chairman of the Glendale City Planning commission.

With action under way to extend Glendale avenue to the south to connect with main streets in the Atwater district affording a new thoroughfare to the Fletcher drive bridge and thence to downtown Los Angeles; and with plans and deeds for the widening of north Glendale avenue drawn and in the hands of the city engineering department, the proposed extension of Glendale avenue to La Crescenta where it would connect with the Tuna canyon road was advanced by Mr. Watson as a strictly feasible development.

Prospect Outlined
Glendale avenue can be continued through Verdugo Woodlands to a point in Sparr Heights where it would connect with Tuna road. At the end of Tujunga road a new street paralleling Honolulu avenue would be necessary to carry the boulevard to the mouth of Tuna canyon.

In presenting his plan before the Glendale Advancement association at noon, Mr. Watson said the road would open an entirely new line into the heart of the San Fernando valley.

When the thoroughfare reaches Roscoe road near Tujunga it can follow that road directly across the floor of the valley to the Chatsworth hills, he declared.

Powerful property owners at the valley end of Tuna canyon favor the new road plan, he said, and stand ready to co-operate in gaining the right-of-ways. Two of these, Henry M. Macdonald and Stanley S. Turner, subdividers, advocated the new highway at the meeting today. J. M. McElish, William H. Reeves and L. H. Wilson were appointed a committee to work with the Planning commission in furthering plans for the road.

The Advancement association also took action to promote a temporary bridge at the West Broadway crossing over the Los Angeles river in order to open Tuna canyon as far as Griffith park connecting with the proposed Riverside drive and truck highways. J. M. McElish presided at the meeting held at the Harriett Mae Tea room.

Kiwanis Club Members Attend Zone Meeting

Glendale Kiwanians attended the monthly meeting of San Fernando valley Kiwanis clubs at San Fernando last night, when "Duties of a Secretary" was the main topic under discussion. Kiwanians representing Glendale were Frank Fox, president; D. H. Smith, W. L. Trullitt, Burton McGinnis, Bert Perry, Ben Dupuy, Fred Walton, Bert Woodard, T. L. Tottom, Fred Del, Ed N. Radke and A. L. Baird.
Bill Williams, popularly known as the Kiwanis club conductor, told the Kiwanians of plans for taking a trainload to the Kiwanis international convention at St. Paul in June. Clubs represented at the meeting last night by over 125 delegates were Glendale, Burbank, Eagle Rock, Van Nuys, Lancaster, Hollywood, Tujunga, La Crescenta-Montrose and Highland Park.

wards said that "after the people have received full instruction, and when civil enactment shall require observance of Sunday and a violation of the Sabbath of the Bible, then with the issue thus clearly brought before him whoever shall trample upon God's law to obey a human enactment receives the mark of the Beast."

The "mark of the beast," it was pointed out, is indicative of evil.

The "mark," however, Elder Parmelee said, is not received until the issue is forced by civil enactment and it is required that "the Sabbath be desecrated and Sunday observed."

All religious legislation is wrong, speakers declared today in an open discussion from the floor of the Seventh-day Adventist church, where the sessions will come to a close this afternoon. It is opposed to all the principles of Americanism and liberty, they asserted.

The present institute, it was said, today will be followed by others in an effort to prevent passage of Sunday closing laws in California, and of Sunday closing ordinances in municipalities.

Religion in Schools

Strongly opposing the teachings of religion in the public schools, W. W. Ruble and R. G. Schaffner of Glendale declared that such a movement makes a state religion and a deplorable union of church and state.

Religious teaching should be kept out of the public school rooms and left with the family and the church," said Ruble. "A state religion is not an uplifting religion. It can't be because of the secular interests involved."

In an address on the proper relation of church and state J. W. McComas of Pasadena declared that persecution follows every time that there is a union of the two.

"There can be no perfect union of church and state," said McComas. "In every case one will always overshadow and rule the other. The state may rule the church, or vice versa, but in either case the one is stifled under persecution of the other."

"There must be a distinct separation of the two. Only then can both state and church progress."

House Permit Denied By Planning Comish

Application to construct an apartment house at Louise and Dryden streets was denied at a meeting of the Glendale Planning commission last night because the structure, according to its plans, was to occupy the entire lot with no set-back line. Commission members declared permission to build the house in that district with no set-back lines would create a dangerous precedent.

Petition to establish a commercial district at California avenue and Chevy Chase drive was denied, and a petition to establish a first class residential district on Campbell street from Dryden street north to the city limits, was also denied.

Unemployment in France now is regarded negligible.

Mann Act Violators Prepare For Prison

Preparations were made today by federal officials in Los Angeles to transfer Alexander B. Rhodes and John W. Box, New Yorkers, to Leavenworth prison, to which they were committed by Federal Judge James, following their conviction of transporting Jeanne R. Taylor from Freeport, N. Y., to Los Angeles.

Box was arrested in Glendale, where he was living with Miss Taylor, who later died in the Glendale sanitarium from poison after she had attempted to rouge her lips with red paper, while being held in the county jail as a material witness.

Box must serve two years and three months and Rhodes eighteen months.

Realtors To Discuss Torrens Title Worth

Many Glendale business men are expected to hear M. V. Hardtrant of Tujunga, advocate of the Torrens title system, when he appears before the Glendale Realty board in meeting tomorrow noon at the Egyptian Village cafe. Mr. Hardtrant will lead the discussion of Torrens titles. Attorneys Bell and Snow, Los Angeles title experts, will also speak. Secretary D. C. Casselman of the Realty board said that reservations may be made for the luncheon by notifying him before 5:30 o'clock tonight.

SOCIAL EVENTS

A surprise farewell party was given last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wheelon, 457 West Ivy street, for Mrs. H. J. F. Hannemann of 1410 Rock Glen avenue, who leaves tomorrow for a trip to Loganport, Ind. Dancing and games formed entertainment and refreshments were served later. Mrs. Hannemann was presented with train letters, to be read on certain days during her trip, and also a box of chocolates. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. H. J. F. Hannemann, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grist, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Roubush, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wheelon, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cornell, Mrs. Harry Pratt, Miss Esther Pierce, Robert Miller, George Grist, Ralph Goodman, Fred Ullman, Otis and Wilmer Young, A. M. Butler and Sam Bell.

Glendale Union Academy's
Work Eulogized In
Graduation of 38

Eulogizing the educational work of the Glendale Union academy, operated by the Pacific Union conference of the Seventh-Day Adventist church, and urging that the influence of teachings received there be carried out into the world, Elder Philip L. Knox of Long Beach, delivered a stirring address to thirty-eight graduating students of the academy at Glendale Union High school last night.

"There is great need in the world at the present time for leaders who will live by the Golden Rule; who will live and let live; who will not attack the liberties

In Charge

MISS EVA DANIELS, chairman of publicity for the Tuesday Afternoon club, who was in charge of arrangements for today's press luncheon at the clubhouse. It was a most novel affair and Miss Daniels received many compliments on the event.

CLUB WOMEN PRESENT AT PRESS LUNCHEON

Editors, Special Writers, Authors and District Officers Among Honored
Guests at Annual Event Today

LOST AND FOUND

FOUND—Barbed wire hairnet, good for club use, free to first person furnishing lead on soon.

It was by such subtly-worded classified advertisements as these that club editors, special writers, authors, district officers and other honored guests found their places today at the press luncheon at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse.

A long anticipated affair, the luncheon proved to be the most brilliant event in the club year, and was conceded by honor guests to be unique in the annals of press events. There were 300 club members and guests in attendance. Tickets for the luncheon were in such demand, that over 100 requests had to be turned down.

Joint Hostesses

Joint hostesses at the luncheon were Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, club president, and Miss Eva Daniels, chairman of publicity for the club. Miss Daniels planned in detail the luncheon festivities, and received many compliments on the innovations introduced.

Those seated at the honor table found at their places plain white cards, bearing their names. When the cards were reversed it was found that classified advertisements, apparently from some local paper, had been pasted on the back of the cards and glaringly marked with blue pencil. These advertisements had been specially printed at The Glendale Evening News office for each person at the honor table.

Under the caption "TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY" was, "FREE IN GLENDALE, lots of sparkling space, music lovers preferred." This was on the placecard of Mrs. Mattison Boyd Jones, president of Glendale Music club.

Even Fireworks

Mrs. H. C. Wilcox, corresponding secretary of the club, found on her placecard, "ANNOUNCEMENTS, open to all engagements as correspondent, not CORRESPONDENT."

For Mrs. Charles H. Toll, junior past president of Los Angeles district, California Federation of Women's clubs, was, "For Sale—Miscellaneous, at sacrifice, pair of wings and worn halo; suitable for club use."

URGE SCHOOL BOND ISSUE SUPPORT

Project Is Discussed At Meeting Of Glendale
Municipal League

Opponents of the proposed grammar and intermediate school bond issues, now before the voters of Glendale, continued their fight on the bonds when the Glendale Municipal league met last night in special session for consideration of the school situation. John R. Gray, John Knox, R. S. Person and others led the arguments against the proposed school bonds. Mrs. A. A. Barton, president of the school board ably represented the proponents of the issues in the main talk in favor of the bonds. Mrs. Barton was subjected to many questions covering a wide latitude of subjects akin to the bond issue.

Mrs. Barton pointed out that representative citizens had made a complete survey of the school system; that these citizens were agreed that the program they had submitted was necessary and, therefore, every effort should be made to carry the bonds on June 16.

Urges Yearly Audit

R. S. Person opened the discussion on "Some Essentials of Public Accounting." He traced the system of public auditing in the national government, urging that "if such importance is attached to an adequate yearly audit in high government circles, it should be adopted in Glendale for the ultimate protection of the taxpayers."

Person attacked the custom of apportioning lump sums to different departments or for different projects, declaring that in higher government circles such appropriations are frowned upon. He urged the segregation of items to be included in the school bond issues with the declaration that "in their present lump form the bond issues manifest the attitude of the school board in fearing that the segregated items will not bear investigation or else the board has no faith in the ability of the taxpayers to judge the merits of the items."

About the police never helps if we give no information on law breaking.
About our opportunities is another way of cutting them off.
About the weather is a sure way to make ourselves miserable.
About the government is poor judgment if we fail to vote.
About the younger generation is sometimes just the result of poor memory.

ADVERTISING THAT PULLS

The manager of a newspaper in a town nearby made an experiment recently which is of interest to advertisers as well as to newspapers. He had the advertising account in his daily newspaper of a tire concern which paid him $40 a month. The advertiser was persuaded to switch to billboards, eliminating his newspaper advertising entirely. The newspaper man went out and took a look at the billboard in the most conspicuous position he could find with this man's advertising on it. He made the proposal to the advertiser that both of them should interview ten men whose homes were so located that they passed the billboard every day at least twice on their way to and from work. If there were three of the ten who could say what was advertised on this billboard the newspaper man would buy the tire man a $10 hat. The test was made and the newspaper man did not have to buy the hat. On the contrary, he got his advertising contract back.

The value of billboards as an advertising medium is questionable, especially along the county highways where motorists go too fast to read them, even if they wished to do so. They are a total loss to the man who is driving, for it is dangerous for him to give his attention to anything but the business in hand. Advertising that is of the most value to the public contains considerable detail which cannot be given on billboards.

Needless to say, the advertising that pulls is found in the columns of the local paper. There is opportunity to give descriptions and prices in newspaper advertising, and there is where it stands the best chance of being seen and read.

AMERICAN LIVING STANDARDS

The United States pays the highest wages to workers of any country in the world. It also charges the highest prices for the necessities and conveniences of life. Some look at one side of the question and are enthusiastic about the condition of the worker; others look at the opposite side and complain of the laborer's hard lot.

But it must be remembered that the American laboring man lives upon a much higher plane than the foreign worker. His needs are greater. The things that are luxuries to the foreigner and which he denies himself altogether, the American working man demands as his daily portion. And this state of affairs is highly desirable, yet it must be considered when the cost of living of the different countries is compared.

The automobile, for instance, has come to be a part of American life. There is a machine for every seven persons in the country. Making due allowances for the families that own more than one car, this means that nearly two-thirds of the families in the United States own cars. The same comparison might be made with other things which are a part of everyday life here and are rarities abroad. In America the average laboring man's salary must cover the upkeep of a car, a radio, a telephone and must provide a home which embraces certain standards unknown among laboring people in foreign countries.

The complaint that wages are insufficient to meet living costs will always be heard, because the standard of living always rises with the increase in wages.

STYLES IN STATIONERY

Nearly all of us have letters we have treasured from the days of the pony express or even earlier in the history of our country. These letters are written on very thin paper, on both sides of the sheet, and some are folded and glued so that no envelope is necessary. And the postage charged was excessive for that day.

During the siege of Paris, during the year of 1870, out-of-town correspondence was written on the thinnest paper that could be procured because the mail was sent out in balloons and space was valuable.

Postage rates today are cheap and a few ounces, more or less, in a letter doesn't make much difference. But when the air-mail is extended to tap every city of any importance in the entire country will it have an effect upon the weight of paper used for correspondence? The stationery used for social correspondence today is very heavy, and business stationery varies from medium to heavy. What might be termed lightweight paper is not used at all.

History repeats itself. It may be possible that very thin paper will be required for correspondence of all kinds when the air-mail service becomes more general. The difference of an ounce in one letter makes little difference, but to cut in half the weight of all the mail to be transported would mean quite a difference in the cost of delivery where airplanes are used. Even now the postmen and others who handle the mail would probably not object to having the weight cut in half.

GERMANY'S PROMISES

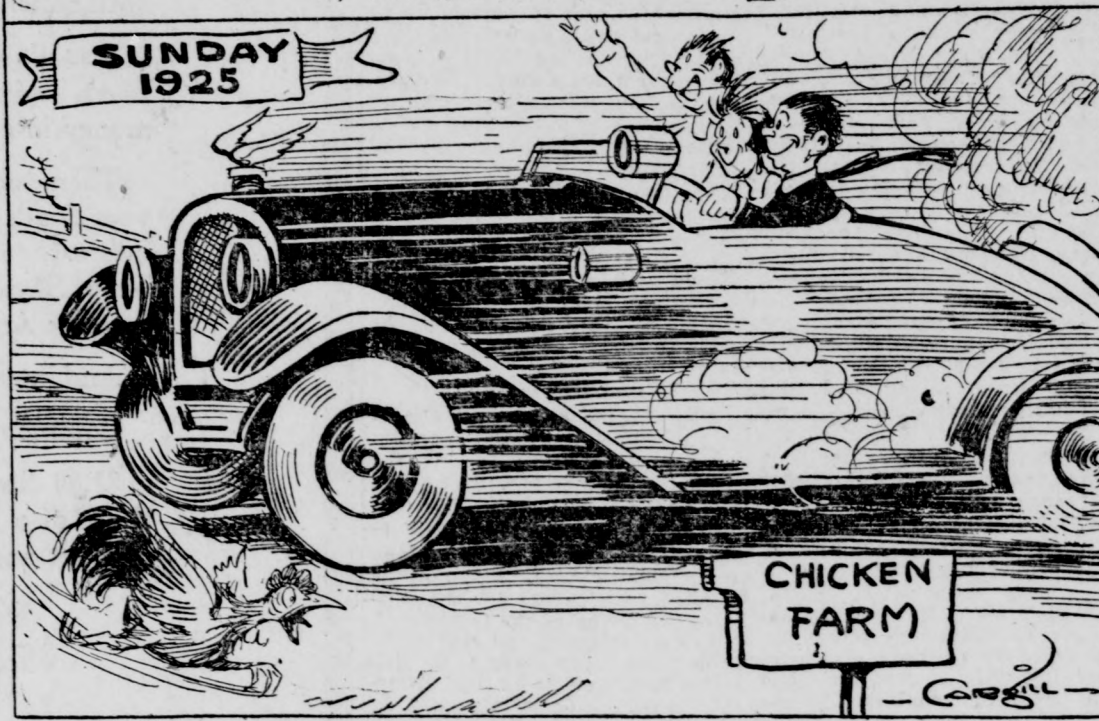

While it is very hard for some of us to forget the time when international treaties were referred to as "scraps of paper," yet the declarations of Von Hindenburg and his premier, Gustav Stresemann ring true and we can but hope that there is genuine sincerity in them.

By way of pledging Germany to the Dawes plan, Herr Stresemann said: "Parliamentary majorities and cabinets may change, but I can conceive no constellation which would deviate from the course we have taken. Even those who are inclined to entertain serious misgivings about the practicability of the Dawes plan must now admit that without it we could not have rehabilitated our national currency and would have been obliged to wage a bitter fight for our economic existence."

America is sincere in her efforts to help Germany back among the respected nations of the world, and if Germany is equally straightforward in her promises and protestations there is every reason for optimism.

Trotzky, it is said, will be glad of any post the Bolshevik government may offer him. He will be lucky, however, if the comrades do not offer him, not a mere post, but a whole tree or telegraph pole, as a terminal facility.

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

Are We Living Too Fast?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A bunch of German experts came over the other day on a steamer from Hamburg, and Professor Emil Kraepelin in an interview expressed himself as believing that people are living too fast in this country.

He said that young men are going ahead one hundred years here in the same time that they are advancing a quarter of a century in Europe.

He held that this would work havoc with the nervous system, and yet, after all, it might be a good thing.

It may be found out that speed in living, as we have here, is advantageous for race development. Instead of destructive. Those who have traveled in Europe have remarked upon the apparent slowness of life. People appear to have plenty of time—time to work, time to play, time to rest, and time to enjoy themselves. Here we are going fast all the time.

The trouble is that the American ideal is different from the European. According to the American notion, a man is born to achieve something, while according to the European notion he is born to enjoy something.

In America enjoyment only comes through achievement. It is the reward of the doer.

Secretary Mellon, seventy years of age, is still a busy man. He has taken a job, the salary for which he does not need for he is a very rich man, and apparently taken it in order to be busy about something worth while. Every day is full of activity.

He is the type of the American man who is not happy unless he is doing something. With us a man who stops work stops life. More people are killed from resting than from any other cause, with us.

In Europe it is different. There orders of nobility, for instance, are all founded upon a leisure class. A man is noble in proportion as he can go far enough back to find an ancestor who worked for his salt.

There it is considered a disgrace to be in trade. With us if a man is doing nothing he is disgraced. It is all in the way you look at it, and who knows whether our point of view is not sounder than the European?

At least our idea makes for progress, for unceasing activity and invention. We are not satisfied with things as they are ever, but we must be going on.

This explains, perhaps, America's predominance in the world.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNAIRD

The ancient saints lived lives of utter simplicity, and preached that the simplest mode of existence was the noblest one. But we of today have almost made a creed that all asceticism, all privation, is in itself an evil and that a nobler life will result from generations of self-satisfied rather than repressed animal desires once they are the lot not of this class or CLARK KINNAIRD that, but of all.

Henry David Thoreau was of no such mind. For him, the mania to possess things, to value a man by the amount of his possessions, is detestable idolatry. Men will not be men, he holds, until they have learned to do without things, to adopt a rigid economy, a stern and more Spartan simplicity of life and elevation of purpose.

Our lives are frittered away by detail. Simplicity, simplicity, simplicity! Thus he preaches.

"Why should we live in such hurry and waste of life?" Thoreau ponders. "We are determined to be starved before we are hungry. Men say that a stitch in time saves nine, and so they take a thousand stitches today to save nine tomorrow."

"As for work, we haven't any of consequence. We have the St. Vitus dance, and cannot possibly keep our heads still."

For more than five years Thoreau maintained himself solely by the labor of his hands as a man of odd-jobs, and he found that by working about six weeks in the year, he could meet all of the expenses of his living. Thus he learned,—"that to maintain one's self on this earth is not a hard ship, but a pastime, if we will live simply and wisely."

Thoreau says that so many of us have thought; that for what we could have we must exchange life—so many hours, or days, or months, or years for this, that and the other.

As man wants, and works to supply his wants, so his wants increase.

And as his wants increase, so is his life expended in gratifying never-ending desires. Says Thoreau:—"The cost of a thing is the amount of what I will call life which is required to be exchanged for it, immediately or in the long run."

Thus he chokes off all desires save to have his freedom and his leisure.

Who's Who

The "Isaac Newton of Sun Study," Dr. Charles Greeley Abbott of the Smithsonian Institution, is head of the scientific party which is making a four-year trip around the world in the interest of science.

The members of the expedition will measure, en route, the daily heat of the sun, stars and other planets in the interest of long-range forecasting. The trip is under the auspices of the National Geographic society and institution.

Dr. Charles Greeley Abbott was born at Wilton, N. H., May 31, 1872. He received the degree of S. B. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1894. The following year he obtained an M. S. degree and later the degree of D. Sc.

Since 1895 he has been associated with the Smithsonian institution; since 1907 he has been director of the Astrophysical observatory of the Smithsonian institution, and for the past six years he has been assistant secretary of the institution. From 1918 to 1923 he was home secretary of the National Academy of Sciences.

Abbott has been engaged continuously in original researches on solar radiation. He has conducted many expeditions to observe total solar eclipses and has made extensive study of the total amount and variability of solar radiation, its absorption in the solar and terrestrial gaseous envelopes, and the effects of its variability on climate.

In addition to being a Draper medallist, National Academy Sciences and a Rumford medallist, American Academy of Arts and Sciences, he is a Fellow of the American association for the Advancement of Science, a member of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America, the Philosophical Society of Washington, the Washington Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Sciences, the Society of Astronomy of France, the Society of Astronomy of Mexico and other scientific organizations.

Among the books Abbott has written are "Everyday Mysteries" and "The Sun." Collaborating with F. E. Fowle and L. B. Aldrich he conducted experiments simultaneously in California and Algeria and later in Arizona and Chile, giving proof of variability of the sun, and incorporating his results in Vols. 3 and 4, Annals, Astrophysical Observations. He has also contributed numerous articles on apparatus, methods and results of solar research.

Railways to be built or replaced in India within the next year will cost nearly $60,000,000.

Timely Views
Sir Ronald Ross, noted scientist, who has just seen the opening of a London research institute bearing his name, sees no reason why the span of life should not be enormously extended. Already people are living longer.
"Eighty years ago," said Sir Ronald Ross, "the average London man lived 34 years, seven months, and the average London woman lived 38 years, four months."
"Today the average length of life of the London man is fifty-three years, nine months, and the average London woman, fifty-nine years. Those are the figures I have gleaned from medical statistics."
"In eighty years medical research has given us twenty more years to live."
That miraculous progress will not stop. A great scientist at the Pasteur Institute in Paris has said that in 100 years' time man should live to the age of 150. Why not?
"Already the length of our lives has been increased by 50 per cent. That is very largely due to medical science in the treatment and prevention of disease, and if the country will only realize the necessity for spending more money on medical research the Pasteur Institute's prediction may well come true."
"A noted American doctor has suggested to me we should all be immortal. Who can tell what scientific investigation may bring? No one can say how long we may live when we are free from the ravages of germs."
"We are still baffled by many diseases. We have not discovered the germs which cause smallpox, measles, scarlet fever and a number of tropical diseases. We have not solved the cancer problem. Even the common cold is a mystery. Science, if it is given a chance, will conquer those ills."

TEXAS CITY, Tex., May 26.—Imports of Cuban sugar through this port thus far this year have totaled 102,243 short tons. This sugar was largely for the refineries here and at Sugarland.

Horoscope

Jupiter in malefic aspect dominates this day, according to astrology. While Venus and Neptune are mildly helpful in influence, the Sun is adverse.

This is a most unfavorable planetary arrangement for all sorts of speculation, which will be particularly tempting at this time.

It is not a lucky day for starting into any new enterprise. The opening of a store or the occupying of an office should be postponed.

There is a menacing sign for the president, governors of states and all who represent government, for they will be harshly and unjustly criticized.

Misjudgment and sanguine hopes where caution should rule are indicated for this configuration. He who is wise will not make investments today.

Journeys and removals are subject to the best direction of the stars, but they should be made early in the day.

Women have fairly good promise for success while this rule prevails, but they should beware of choosing husbands under this government of the stars.

It is not a first rate time for places of amusements although it is most promising for preparations for the future, the building of theatres, or the writing of plays.

New ideas regarding motion pictures are forecast and there are to be remarkable mechanical improvements introduced after long delays.

The seers prophesy that inventions now held back will add marvelously to the effectiveness of screen dramas.

Metaphysics now comes under a rule that presages great discoveries in regard to the occult world. Remarkable books will be published and scientific investigations will be widespread.

This is not an auspicious day for seeking work of any sort, although the number of the unemployed will decrease before the end of the week.

Persons whose birthdate it is should keep an especially strong hold on their money. Giving credit or any sort of business venture will be disappointing it is augured. Children born on this day may be too generous for their own

Today's Poem

SPIRITUAL LOVE
What care I tho' beauty fading
Die ere Time can turn his glass?
What tho' locks the graces braid-
Perish like the summer grass?
Though thy charms should all
Perish like the summer grass.

Think not my affections may
For the charms—tho' bright as morning
Captured not my idle heart;
Love so grounded ends in scorn-
ing.

Lacks the barb to hold the dart.
My devotion more secure
Woos thy spirit high and pure.

PASTOR PRAISES WORD FROM BIBLE

Rev. Edmonds, Presbyterian Minister, Tells Worth Of Scriptures

Rev. Edmonds of the Glendale Presbyterian church, on Sunday morning preached on the subject "The Word is Wonderful" from the text in Psalm 119, verse 129. The sermon was introduced by the installation service of the teachers and officers of the Sunday Bible school. The Bible school is an important part of the work of this church with an attendance of a thousand each Sunday and it was deemed important that those who carry the responsibility of its teaching and conduct should be publicly installed. The sermon follows:

"The inspiration of the Scriptures is the keystone of the arch of the truth. Take away the inspiration from this wonderful word and the whole is weakened and easily overthrown. Inspiration is the foundation of our faith. . . . Again inspiration is the pillar of our profession, for by the word our profession stands or falls. Hastings has well said the authorship of this book is wonderful, written by kings, emperors, princes, poets, philosophers, fishermen, statesmen. Written by men in exile, in desert, shepherds' tents. Amongst its writings we find the tax-gatherer, herdsmen, poor men, rich men, preachers, captains and judges. It contains all kinds of writing, yet perfect harmony prevails. . . . 'Holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost,' and as they wrote, God seized the hand and made that hand His own. We affirm the inspiration and authority of the original Scripture as God breathed and verbally inspired."

Oldest Book
"This testimony is wonderful. This book is wonderful in its antiquity. . . . It antedates in its earliest portions, all other books. There may be other writings such as clay tablets and inscriptions, etc., found in Egypt and Assyria—but these are not books in the ordinary sense. They are but fragments—there is no unity, no message. But the Bible is not only wonderful for its antiquity, but it is complete in its message of redemption."

"Again it is wonderful in its unity. The sixty-six books are complete, yet not one can be omitted without impairing its unity. Under ordinary circumstances the conditions which obtained in the writing of the Bible, would make unity absolutely impossible. Nevertheless we have here a book with a message progressive, constructive, cumulative and complete. Though there were many writers, there was but one Master Mind."

"The Bible is also wonderful in its authority. . . . Its authority is as unyielding as the eternal hills. It is pre-eminently the voice of God. . . . 'Thus saith the Lord' is final. . . . And again it is wonderful in its inextinguishability. The experience of this Book among the sons of men; wounded in the house of its friends. . . . God with all His power was on the side of this Book and that being so, who could prevail against it? In all ages, the enemies of God have sought to destroy His Wonderful word, but 'Thy Word O Lord, is settled forever in the Heavens,' and it is as indestructible as the Throne itself."

Great in Simplicity
"It is wonderful in its simplicity. God so devised the Bible that a wayfaring man, though a fool, need not err therein."

"The Bible also is wonderful in its universality. The Bible is the world's best seller today. Twenty million copies have been printed annually. Some part of it is found translated into every language known to man, in all 725 different languages."

"It is wonderful in its personality. In no other way is its antiquity, unity, authority, indestructibility, simplicity and universality to be accounted for. The book is alive; it has a voice. 'In the beginning was the word.' His word liveth and abideth forever. It is the first and the last. His personality vitalizes and energizes the book. His picture is found in every part. The center of the book is the Cross of Christ. The circumference is the Glory of Christ. The invitation of the book is 'Come for all things are now ready.' Through all the days and through all eternity, we shall exclaim 'O, how I love Thy law. It is my study all the day long. Thy word is Wonderful!'"

Schaffner Pupils Will Give Recital Thursday

Bessie Martin Schaffner will present her pupils in piano recital Thursday night at 7:45 o'clock at Van Grove salon, North Brand boulevard. Ochs, mezzo soprano and Mervin Peterson, baritone, of Glendale, will appear on the program.

Heals Sick

ELIZABETH CANTRELL, of Wichita, Kan., invited to appear before British college next fall.

WICHITA, Kan., May 26.—The healing powers claimed for Elizabeth Cantrell, famous Wichita woman, will be given a scientific test by the British College of Psychic Science in the first examination ever given a woman by the institute.

She has accepted the invitation of the British College of Psychic Science to appear before its experts next fall for a series of tests.

Miss Cantrell will remain in London several months while the college observes her work. The London scientists will pay all expenses and the Wichita woman will be permitted to build up a practice if she wishes.

Several months ago Miss Cantrell appeared before the Psychic Society of New York. Dr. W. E. Prince, head of the society, spent several weeks at the Wichita woman's home last year to observe her work. He reported he could find no explanation for the mysterious power held by Miss Cantrell in relieving people suffering from organic disorders.

"She has cured people by touch since childhood. I can see no method of cure unless it is by the contact of her hands," his report reads.

Neither Miss Cantrell nor Dr. Prince claims healing is done by hypnotic powers.

COMMENT
by GIL A. COWAN

Expression of views in which the writer concurs appears in the Santa Barbara News' recent editorial on "Debating in Schools."

"A petition is in circulation at the high school asking for the establishment of a course in debating. This petition is greatly to the credit of the students and it is to be hoped that the school authorities will see their way to grant the request."

"There is no better training in the use of the English language than that afforded by debating. Not only does it require a close study of language and the orderly presentation of arguments but the research work which lays the foundation for the actual debate is more than worth while."

"There was a time when the debating contests between schools and colleges were of sufficient interest to bring about the organization of rooting sections and the leading debater ranked with the star athlete."

"That time has gone, probably not to return, but throughout the country there are evidences of a revival of interest in debating and public speaking which inspires the hope at least that the tide has turned again."

"The really good speaker is rare, even in the legal profession to which the public naturally looks for oratorical ability. It is time that steps should be taken to restore a lost art."

"There is no better place to lay the foundation for this revival than in the high school, particularly as in doing so, interest of the students may be stimulated in the study of English. Incidentally the debate will develop interest in public questions."

The San Francisco Chronicle editor gives the following advice on "Home Ownership":

"The homes of the world are done for. To build them and keep them is the first concern of a stable civilization. So essential to happiness are homes that many European countries have made their construction a public utility. There is no such need of paternalism here, where a liberty-loving people will provide its own homes without government subsidy."

"A new spirit is born of ownership. There is dignity in a permanent settlement. It was the hand of the plow that made America great. What was owned was worth fighting for. In an industrial age, with population massed in cities, that proprietorship which of others to please themselves," said Knox.

"You people are on the threshold of the greatest opportunity any group of graduates ever had. There is work for you to do on every hand. You must meet the foes of religion; the foes of good government; but you are able fitted to hold your own against all of them with the training of the Glendale Union academy."

'Find Your Place'
"Find your place—your niche. Determine what you want to do in the world, and then do it. Stick to the thing you start, and finish it."

Knox urged that the class motto "Climbing" be made the life motto of the graduating students. "Some of you will require all your energy and enthusiasm to keep climbing," he said, "but keep on the job all the time and you will eventually reach your goal."

An astronomer of some note, Knox told of efforts of scientists to find new stars and to determine the qualities and other facts of known planets. "Through discouragement the astronomers stuck to their tasks, and the world has been made a better place; knowledge has been increased by their work."

Graduating Class
Principal D. A. Ochs of the academy presented the diplomas to Marcia Banta, Leland W. Burdine, Florence E. Brown, Hazel F. Brothers, Joseph E. Cairncross, Clarice Chalmers, Allen Comstock, Velda A. Dow, Paul D. Fisher, V. Dale Fate, Lula Guldge, Gladys Garvin, Ralph D. Hickey, Ethel G. Iden, W. G. Jackson, Margaret Johnson, Virginia Kimlin, Wanda Kunkelman, Evelyn G. Meyer, Berwick L. Martin, Frederick L. Mitchell, Zelpha N. Miller, Hazel B. Peterson, John J. A. Paap, Mary L. Pace, Adolfo Turuganan, Ruth N. Schindler, Herbert W. Seiss, Elizabeth May Shipley, Eunice E. Shepherd, Frances Lois Terwilliger, Merlin M. Taggart, Margaret R. Vollmer, Esther D. Voth, Paul Wilbur, Estella M. White, Verda V. White and Leon Johnson.

A cello solo was given by Miss Nellie Winslow and a vocal solo by Retta King Nelson. Prof. W. W. Ruble, secretary of the educational department of the Pacific Union conference gave the invocation, while Dr. E. W. Alsberge of Los Angeles, chairman of the academy school board, delivered the benediction.

Amid flowers banked high on the rostrum, thirty-six juniors were inducted into the academy from the eighth grade.

Merchants To Inspect Moreland Auto Plant

Glendale business men will head a large delegation of Glendaleans to visit the factory of the Moreland Truck Co., at Burbank, Thursday afternoon, under the auspices of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce. The event will be the second of a series of inspection tours to be made of large industrial plants in the valley. Visitors at the Moreland factory will be shown how steel castings are made, operation of electrical furnaces and many other features of the big truck concern. The public is invited to inspect the plant from 3:30 to 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Secretary Howard I. Wood of the chamber stated.

Clara Wolter Pupils Presented In Recital

Clara A. Wolter, her piano pupils, and Myron Carman, baritone, won praise last night in their recital at Van Grove Music salon, 337 North Brand boulevard. The large company attending complimented all those taking part in the program.

Particularly notable was the piano work of Mrs. C. W. West, in playing "Perpetual Motion" (Weber), "Liebestraum" (Liszt), and the entire "Concerto in A Minor" (Grieg), which she played from memory. Orchestral parts were played by Miss Wolter. Others taking part in the program were Catherine Fox, Adele Jacobson, Richard Teege, Charlotte Sturgess, and Mr. Carman.

Missionary Club To Meet Friday Morning

The missionary society and service league of La Crescenta Community Presbyterian church will meet at 10 o'clock Friday morning for a business session. Luncheon will be at 12:30 o'clock. At 2 o'clock Mrs. Hesse, president of Glendale Women's Federated Missionary societies, will speak. Those attending are asked to bring lunch. Coffee will be served. The memorial service will be held at the church Sunday night.

steadied the farmer must be transferred to ownership of homes. "Home ownership means better citizenship. The family that the landlord is apt to discriminate against is encouraged in the home. In good home districts there is a dearth of juvenile delinquency. Anything that enhances the dignity of man enhances his character."

"Here where life is better there is ample room for extensive home settlements. Our undeveloped areas lie within easy reach of the working sections of the city. "The proper time to begin to think about buying your own home is right now."

Nazarene Church Has Election Of Officers

The annual church business meeting and election of officers of First Church of the Nazarene was held last night at the church, 417 East Acacia avenue, with Rev. J. I. Hill of Pasadena, district superintendent, presiding. New members on the board of trustees elected were: Virgil Wilcox, John Klimmling, Will Crumpler, L. Stults and W. C. Blake. Members of the board of stewards elected were: Mrs. Jack Fenton, Mrs. Vivian Horton, Mr. Wase, Mrs. Will Still, Archie Rutledge, Mrs. Iva Wilcox and Elmer Heck. Delegates elected to the district assembly, which meets in Los Angeles June 9 to June 14, were: Mrs. Mabel Scheidegger and Mrs. Jack Fenton. Alternates elected were: W. C. Blake and J. E. Beck. Rev. Henry Scheidegger, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, gave his annual report.

Other annual reports given were by Mrs. Alice Evans, Sunday school superintendent; Vernon Wilcox, acting president of the Young People's society; W. C. Blake, church treasurer. Rev. Hill gave a short talk before the business meeting. The annual election of officers of the Young People's society of the Nazarene church will be held Thursday night at the church.

Glendale Air Pilot Thrills Landlubbers

Al Gilhouse, local air pilot, who has thrilled thousands of Glendaleans, reports that last Sunday over fifty "landlubbers" enjoyed themselves in the clouds. According to Gilhouse, every one of the fifty, upon reaching mother earth, became enthusiastic about aviation.

To show that it will be but a short while before Glendale will be the home of aviation, Mr. Gilhouse reports he has from ten to twelve students every week. "Expert pilots are in and around Glendale most every day, and in a few years it will be a novelty to find someone who is not accustomed to the air," states Gilhouse.

THAW MAKES SPLASH ON BROADWAY

Harry K., Grey-Haired, Tires
Of Country Life; Invades
'Roaring Forties'

NEW YORK, May 26.—Suddenly abandoning the monotonous existence of a country squire, Harry K. Thaw has come back to Broadway and the whole of that tinsel thoroughfare was talking about Harry's re-advent into its night life.

Up and down the Rialto it was observed that the return of the prodigal was coincident with the demolition of Madison Square Garden, whose gilded dance once looked down on Thaw's slaying of Stanford White. Whether memories brought him back or just the desire to "see the lights" was a matter of conjecture.

What interested Broadway more, however, was the splash Harry made on his initial appearance in the Roaring Forties. He dropped into the newest of the supper clubs, white-haired and debonair as usual, and before he left in the small hours of the morning he had distributed corsages and big bills as of yore. Broadway gossip had the Thaw bank roll depleted to the tune of about $1500 for the initial splash.

Tens, twenties and fifties are said to have been distributed with a lavish hand to doorknockers, waiters, etc., and an orchestra leader was moved to riotous jazz by the yellow glitter of a $500 bill.

"Harry's back" went the word around the gilt tables. To the youngsters, who still were in rompers when Harry was saying it with bills along the Rialto twenty years ago, that didn't mean much. But to the old-timers it meant a lot. Many of them went over to his table and shook hands.

"I wish," said Texas Guinan, hostess of the club in question, "that every man who comes in here after having a few drinks knew how to handle himself as well as Harry. He's a dear."

It's been a long time since Harry shook a foot along Broadway. But he showed last night, or rather this morning, that being a volunteer fireman in Winchester, Va., and marching in its parades has not spoiled his dancing form.

He danced frequently with his pretty companion, "Pawnee Gray," a professional dancer. Thaw declined to divulge whether he contemplates remaining in New York for any length of time. He dropped in unexpectedly, registered at a hotel under another name and said he was "bored" with Virginia, being a fireman and a landed proprietor. Winchester doesn't move very fast.

Women's Athletic Club Makes Summer Plans

Activities of the Women's Athletic club for June, July and August were discussed yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the board of directors, and chairman of sports held at the home of Mrs. Virginia Farr at 504 Fischer street. Mrs. J. H. Toal, president, directed the meeting. Mrs. Helen Stewart was appointed chairman of a committee of six to plan the program of picnics, beach trips and other outings for the summer months. Other members of the committee will be appointed later. Refreshments were served following the meeting by Mrs. Farr assisted by Mrs. J. H. Hargreaves.

The gymnasium class met last night at Harvard High school when further plans for field day, June 9 were discussed. Those planning to take part in the events have been requested to note that a special drill will be held June 8 at Harvard school. Mrs. Virginia Farr announced that a hike will be held tomorrow, members leaving Harvard High school at 9:30 o'clock. Each person taking the hike has been requested to take a picnic lunch, and also a bright colored cloth to be used in the events. Mrs. Farr plans to make the hike a field day event for those who enjoy hiking. A trophy will be awarded to the winner of the mountain climbing contest. All club members are invited to take the hike.

Announcement was made that a club news bulletin will be ready for field day with the field day program, list of summer activities, and other interesting items. Members should send suggestions and news items to postoffice box 244 or telephone Glen. 4882-V.

CLOSED CONDUIT IN CANYON URGED

S. T. Regnier Writes Letter
About Flood Conditions
Endangering City

Editor, Evening News—Sycamore Canyon improvement is one of the most important improvements to the city of Glendale that has been proposed in many months or since the city's incorporation, and should be considered from its different angles for the general benefit of the community at large. The various officials, organizations and individuals should give it serious thought, as it means a great deal to the community at this time, and the future development of the city and county.

Only 1.62 inches of rain coming in gentle showers during the night and early morning produced 65 square feet of water before noon, to flood Sycamore Canyon canal, Chevy Chase drive, and all the streets from curb to curb, also flooding Roads End three or more feet above the conduit, making a stream 72 feet wide, and 7 feet deep in the channel, ruining good substantial improvements, leaving great quantities of mud and debris in its wake, giving the street the appearance of a settling basin, as it did March 29, repeating it again April 4 with 8 inches less flood water.

May 21 we had .62 of an inch of rain, overflowing the street at Roads End three to six inches. Similar conditions existed at Boynton. What will a real storm do such as we had in 1914 or such rains as we had in 1922?

The damage done along section No. 2 or lower part of the wash by five or six inches of rain the past two months is considerable. This menace will become greater and greater with every added mile of street, every yard of roof and every foot of pavement that is constructed in the future.

Says Rain Light
Glendale has been very fortunate this season that the rains that came in most cases, fell very gently and not with such a downpour as often occurs. We have had but half of the rain we should get each season; 15.46 inches being the normal rainfall for this part of the state.

When we look the situation over and realize there are 3,500 acres or more in the East Glendale and West Eagle Rock watershed, it is not surprising Sycamore Canyon waterway has been taxed to its full capacity in its present condition.

Has it not very emphatically demonstrated the urgent need of immediate consideration and prompt construction of an adequate channel to care for the flood water that menaces the community in its business and social requirements?

Writes Covered Conduit
The writer has interviewed a great many of the property owners along the waterway. All are of one mind, that there should be a covered conduit of ample size to relieve the damage to life and property and the danger to life an open ditch would incur.

The expense of covering it at time of construction would be but little more than it would cost to build a fence or child-proof railing on both sides of the ditch to make it safe from drowning there-in at flood times. A fence, as you know, would be very unsightly.

I believe I am correct in the following statements. If not, would appreciate the correction by any one who is better informed.

Discusses Bonds
Tropico, before becoming a part of Glendale, provided a sum of $28,000 for the improvement of that part of Sycamore Canyon wash that passed from the north to south boundary of what was at that time Tropico. This fund, therefore, according to the terms of its transfer, can be used only success of the affair was due to the work of the entertainment committee with Mrs. Alfred Moles in charge. Music for dancing was furnished by courtesy of the Glendale orchestra of Glendale.

BANK TO HAVE FINE HOME IN CITY

Purchase Of Community
Institution Paves Way
For Future Plans

Following the announcement that the Bank of America, of Los Angeles, Orta E. Monette, president, had purchased the Community Savings & Commercial bank of Glendale, located at Brand boulevard and San Fernando road, the further announcement was made today that the Bank of America contemplates the erection of a fine financial and office building in the main business section of Glendale.

The complete plans, however, are not yet ready for announcement, and until they are complete, the Bank of America will operate in Glendale from the bank at Brand and San Fernando. It is understood that property on North Brand may be secured for the main building of the Bank of America.

Announcement that the Bank of America had purchased the Community Savings & Commercial bank was made by L. M. MacDonald, chairman of the board of directors of the Bank of America.

The Community bank will become a branch institution of the Bank of America, which now has twelve branch banks in Southern California. Permission to conduct a branch bank in Glendale has been granted by the Bank of America by the state banking commissioner. Negotiations for the purchase of the Community bank were conducted by the American Commercial corporation of Los Angeles, an organization established by the Bank of America to purchase bank stocks.

The Community Savings & Commercial bank was founded in November, 1922, by Daniel Campbell and business associates. The paid-up capital of the institution when it was founded was $40,000. At the last call the resources of the bank were given as approximately $350,000.

Bank Officials
Mr. Campbell is president of the Community bank. Other officers are W. W. Lee and W. C. B. Richardson, vice-presidents; and H. J. Wellman, cashier. The directors are Max Bayha, George H. Bentley, George V. Black, Arthur Campbell, Hubert L. Eaton and George B. Karr. Mr. MacDonald announces no changes in the personnel of the Community bank is contemplated at present.

President Monette declared today that he welcomed the opportunity to enter the Glendale field. The future plans of the bank, relative to a building in the main business section of Glendale, however, are not yet ready for announcement.

Counter Move Against Annexation Is Taken

In a counter move against annexation of Casa Verdugo to the city of Glendale, a delegation of Casa Verdugo property owners appeared before the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county yesterday with a request to incorporate their district into a sixth class municipality.

C. O. Marsh, Oliver Logan and others who appeared before the supervisors declared that they preferred incorporation as an independent city to annexation of their section to the city of Glendale, petitions for which are now in circulation. The Board of Supervisors took the request for incorporation under advisement.

Knights Templar Will Observe Memorial Day

Plans for Memorial day, when Glendale Knights Templar will visit Forest Lawn and Grand View Memorial parks to decorate graves of deceased lodgemen, were laid at the meeting of Glendale commandery last night. The Templars will meet in full uniform at the Masonic temple at 9 o'clock Saturday morning and will go from there to the cemeteries in a body.

The Order of the Temple was conferred on Bruce Gordon Kingley and M. B. Stevenson by Dr. Roy V. Hogue and Clem Moore, past commanders.

SUSPECT HUNTED

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—Both prosecution and defense in the case of Dorothy Ellington, 17-year-old confessed matricide, were today searching for a shadowy character known to the police as "Jimmy La Marr," the man whom Dorothy now accuses with the murder of her mother, following repudiation of her confession that she committed the crime.

for the improvement within said stipulated district.

On May 8, 1924, the bonds of $225,000 were voted for the improvement of Sycamore Canyon wash, sections No. 1 and No. 2. This money is available for immediate use.

The property owners along Sycamore Canyon wash of section No. 2 desire that their full portion of the $225,000, and the entire sum of $34,000, as arranged for by Tropico be expended on this work at the earliest date possible consistent with good construction.

We are pleased to believe that the flood control officials are very much in favor of an early completion of this work.

Elks Add Seven New Members At Ceremony

Four hundred Glendale Elks witnessed initiation ceremonies exemplified by officers of the newly formed Burbank lodge at Glendale lodgerooms last night, when seven new members were admitted to the local order. The Burbank delegation, forty strong, was headed by Thomas Walker, exalted ruler. Officers of Burbank lodge were guests at dinner at the Egyptian Village cafe, when officers of Glendale lodge entertained before the meeting. Following the initiation, members of the "good of the order" committee, assisted by newly-made brethren, entertained the lodge. Entertainment by the "radio fraternity," headed by J. F. Albright, and a midnight dinner concluded the program.

COUNCIL REJECTS FIREHOUSE BIDS

City To Build Station No. 5
By Day Labor; Offers
Considered High

All bids offered the city for erection of fire station No. 5, to be built at Chevy Chase drive and Verdugo Canyon road, were rejected by the City Council at its meeting today and a resolution was adopted under which the city will construct the building by day labor and purchase of materials in the open market. The estimated cost of the building is $5000. All of the bids were considerably over that figure.

An ordinance officially calling an election June 16 to vote on issuance of $150,000 in municipal bonds for erection of a memorial hall, sponsored by all patriotic and service organizations in the city, was adopted today.

At the request of the advertising committee of the Chamber of Commerce, the city appropriated $500 for purchase of decorations to be used during the Shrine convention, June 1 to 6.

Banner Denied
Application of the city of Pomona to hang a banner across a principal street for thirty days prior to the Los Angeles county fair to be held at Pomona September 22 to 26, was denied, after councilmen had declared that approval of the application would set a bad precedent.

Petition for a setback line of two and one-half feet on Colorado street west of Central avenue was referred back to property owners, on the ground that it cannot be granted by ordinance. All of the property is in a commercial district. The petition was signed by 52.8 per cent of all property owners.

The city engineer was instructed to submit plans to eliminate a dangerous culvert at Oak and Pacific avenues and to remedy flood conditions at Ivy and Columbus streets at Kenilworth north of Gilbert street.

FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, May 26.—An ancient mining tunnel that extends more than fifty feet into a solid sandstone formation has been discovered in the hillside near the home of George S. Read, 3306 Isabel street, Eagle Rock. Read was digging in the garden preparing an asparagus bed when the ground gave way. The tunnel is to be explored.

The Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner last night served at the Congregational church. Dr. Dexter, president of Whittier college, was the principal speaker. More than 100 children from Eagle Rock schools participated in the Andersen festival held under the auspices of the physical education department. A pantomime, "Silver Shoes," was given by Mrs. A. Harrison, Margaret Wilhelm and E. Squire.

Rev. Clive Taylor of Dinuba has been unanimously chosen to the pastorate of the Eagle Rock Christian church.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Clouston of Yosemite drive plan to leave in a few weeks for Europe. They will be absent on the trip for several months.

Mary Louise Wages of Franklin high school, a winner of the Los Angeles city high school oratorical contest, will deliver an address before the Highland Park Elks club today. Don Tyler, 1925 winner of the national contest, will talk on "The High School and Citizenship."

Currency Taken From Studio Cash Register

Thieves who entered the Dolberg studios, 106 East Broadway, last night, gained access to the cash register and made away with $71 in currency and approximately $8 in small change, according to a report made by Glenn R. Dolberg, proprietor of the photo studio, to the police. Checks which were contained in the same drawer were unmolested by the thieves.

The theft was discovered by Mr. Dolberg when he arrived at the studio this morning shortly after 8 o'clock. The cash register, kept in a small office off from the main reception room of the studio was open and the money was missing. The thieves had apparently used a pass key in entering the studio through a rear door, Mr. Dolberg believed.

MONTROSE NOTES

MONTROSE, May 26.—A delightful entertainment was given by the members of Miss Wiley's Sunday school class at the Montrose Community church last week when girl members appeared with a dressed-up supper box to be auctioned off, the purchaser being the supper partner of the seller. A clever program had also been arranged by the class which helped make the affair a financial success.

Opening the program Miss G. Swan and Miss H. Bates dressed in Spanish costume sang "Juanita." Girls of the Montrose broad-casting class gave the popular "Long, Long Trail," Miss Bates two Spanish songs, reading by Miss Murphy of the Emerson School of Expression. The class had arranged words to the music of "Smiles" calling their parody "Bates" thus inviting every one to partake of the contents of the supper boxes. Proceeds of the affair will be used to complete the girls' tennis court on the property adjoining the church.

The Margaret Jarman's concert given Saturday night at the Crescenta school by the ways and means committee of the La Crescenta Women's club was a decided artistic success. Miss Jarman was in fine voice, her vocal tones being of the deep resonant variety, her diction and rhythm perfect. She sang in Italian, French, German and Spanish. Mrs. Frederick Crowe who accompanied Miss Jarman was exceptionally well received in her solo numbers which included selections from Schumann, Zarembski and Sibelius. Both artists came from San Francisco especially for this concert, a fact heartily appreciated by the music lovers of the Valley. Beautiful floral tributes presented the artists were tokens of the La Crescenta Women's club. A Knabe grand piano was furnished through the courtesy of the Van Grove music salon of Glendale.

A joint meeting of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of La Crescenta valley will be held tomorrow night in the Verdugo City auditorium for the purpose of completing final plans for the installation and initial ceremonies which the Rebekahs will hold next week. Nobel Grand Lester Thompson asks all members of the order to be present.

HOMESTEAD DENIED

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Coolidge today issued an executive order temporarily withdrawing from homestead entry 960 acres of land in Inyo county, California. The purpose is to hold the land to await legislation converting it into a national recreational area. A similar order was issued for 640 acres of land in Mohave county, Arizona.

Wilson School Paper, Blue And Gold, Ready

A B-8 edition of Blue and Gold, the Wilson Intermediate school paper will be issued tomorrow by the following staff: Carl Aliebrand, editor; Marie Zann and Roswell Bassell, assistant editors; Mildred Thompson, Milly Straus, sports editors; John Hoffman, Albert Bestland, jokes and features; Howard Cronenweth, art; Robert Harris, business manager. Stencils for the paper, prepared by the students, were typed by Morris Mutzig, Francis Fisher and Oscar Lee, members of a B-8 typing class.

The B-8 class is much to be congratulated on this splendid example of their ability to organize and produce a finished paper. To quote from an editorial written by the editor: "We feel that the B-8 sections will be well able to uphold the honor of Wilson school and that they will do it."

SPEAKERS TELL NEED TO PROTECT YOUTHS

Republican Women's Study Club Members Hear Assemblyman Weller; Dorothy Lee Weller; Baroness de Ropp

By KATHERINE V. SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff.

Ardent pleas for the safeguarding of American youth and the upholding of the highest ideals of Americanism were voiced yesterday at the Republican Women's Study club meeting at Central Christian church, by Assemblyman Frank Weller, Dorothy Lee Weller and Baroness Ottilie de Ropp, the speakers of honor.

Mr. Weller, who has won many honors during his four years in legislative life, gave a most comprehensive outline of some of the important constitutional amendments and bills considered at the recent session of California's state bodies. He prefaced his talk by saying that of the 2500 documents introduced, 900 were passed.

Among the constitutional amendments he discussed briefly were:

1. Amendment providing for a judicial council which would provide ways and means for expediting administration of justice.
2. Amendment providing exemption from taxation of private schools not conducted for profit.
3. Amendment providing that the state pay a flat sum of $3000 on judges salaries.
4. Amendment providing for reforestation and conservation on waste lands.
5. Amendment providing for increase in salaries for some state officers.
6. Amendment providing for $20,000,000 bonds issue for veterans' welfare.
7. Amendment providing for $8,500,000 bond issue for developing the University of California, the capitol extension buildings at Sacramento and the building of a state building in Los Angeles.

The bills he discussed were the:

1. Gas tax.
2. Reapportionment bill.
3. Self-governing bar bill.
4. Week day religious instruction bill.
5. Corporate Securities bill.
6. Municipal Court bill.
7. Amendment of election laws.
8. Amendment of country control act.
9. Sonoma Home bill.

Some of the features of Mr. Weller's discussion were his favorable attitude to the judicial council amendment; his explanation that private schools not conducted for profits save the taxpayers $250,000, the schools are exempted from $30,000 taxation; his explanation that the reforestation and conservation amendment meant that waste lands reforested would be assessed as waste lands until the trees have matured; his declaration that the $20,000,000 bond issue for veterans' welfare would mean the best form of veterans' legislation of any state in the union; that the $8,500,000 bond issue would improve the University of California at Berkeley and the southern branch, would complete the capitol extension buildings at Sacramento, and build a state building in Los Angeles.

Gas Tax Measure

In his discussion of bills he stated that Southern California was not receiving just treatment under the gas tax bill, which he does not feel the governor will sign; with regard to the reapportionment bill, he stated that it is his opinion that Californians will never get reapportionment through the state legislature, but that the time is coming for an initiative amendment adopted by the people; in discussing the self-governing bar bill he stated that the bill would allow California attorneys to the California bar, thus ridding it of shyster lawyers; he stated that the municipal court bill would relieve the congestion in the superior court; as for the bill amending the election laws, he spoke favorably of its providing that a person living in the same precinct and voting in all general elections could register for life.

County Control Act

Of special interest to Glendale people was his brief discussion of the amendment of the county control act, which he said favored people in San Fernando valley, in that it would mean the erection of a dam in the Big Tujunga Canyon. Finally, in mentioning the repeal of the criminal syndicalism law being laid on the table, Mr. Weller took occasion to decry the spread of communistic propaganda throughout the United States, and made a plea for the advancement of true American ideals.

Mrs. Weller told of the visits she took to Folsom and San Quentin prisons, during the recent legislative session, when she and Mr. Weller were residing in Sacramento. They were privileged to visit Folsom, and later spend the week end as guests of the warden at San Quentin. At the time of her visits stories written by her exclusive for The Glendale Evening News, appeared in the News. Yesterday Mrs. Weller told of the arrangement of the prison buildings, something of the administration and of the occupation of the prisoners. She introduced human interest into her narrative by telling of seeing some of the notable criminals, well known by stories appearing in the newspapers.

Age of Prisoners
Features of her talk was the statement that she learned at the prisons that the prisoners are said to disapprove of the abolition of capital punishment. She also spoke favorably of the establishment of a wage for prison labor in state road camps. In closing she stated that while the ages of the men prisoners range from 17 to 78 years, the majority of prisoners are under 30 years of age. "This brings one to the realization of the need of protecting youth from influences and environments of crime," she concluded.

Baroness de Ropp told of conditions in Russia and of the need of protecting American government and life from the spreading communistic propaganda. Vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Harry McMullin and Gretta Cordary, accompanied by Mrs. Roberta T. Young. Mrs. McMullin sang "Garden of Your Heart" and "I Hear a Thrush at Eve." Mrs. Cordary's songs were "The Wind Song" and "The Cuckoo Clock."

Plans Questions

Mrs. George Carter, who is to conduct study of the federal constitution, gave an introductory sketch, presenting events that led up to the making of the constitution. At the next meeting, the Monday in June, she will quiz the club on the following questions: Name the thirteen original states; who wrote the Declaration of Independence? When and where was it written? Who were the signers? Who were present at the constitutional convention? What was the "Father of the Constitution"? Who were the signers of the Constitution? Was Jefferson one? Give the preamble. What three independent departments were created by the Constitution? Tell all you can about the house of representatives. What are the duties? What are the powers? How many representatives are there and why? What is the salary? Who are California's representatives? Is the word slave in the Constitution? Who is a congressman? Mrs. W. E. Evans presented the program. Mrs. Ella Richardson, presided over the opening of the meeting.

ORPHEUM SCORES WITH REAL ACTS

All-Star Bill With Songbird Grace LaRue Featured, Makes Big Hit

Well—the Orpheum scores again with one of those shows which we see not any too often. Of course regular Orpheum patrons get quite blasé when it comes to acts. Last night, however, the most blasé were the ones who nearly shook the house down. As soon as the six famous "Chinese Warriors" started chasing each other with swords everybody was exclaiming that by all appearances it was going to be "some show."

Adler, Weil and Herman landed the deuce position and convinced everybody that they were taking care of the singing end of the show.

Glen and Richards introduced their dancing and orchestra in a most novel way. Clever, lightning-like dancing was featured, while different members of their aggregation showed real "nut" ability.

Some fellows talk fast, but Bert Hanlon sure makes words go through their stuff. With lots of clever wise cracks and nifties and his discourse on an olive bring down the house.

Grace La Rue Stars

By this time all the customers were in good nature, so that when Charles Withers brought on his old style variety entertainment of thirty years ago in "Withers' Opry," the audience just howled.

Why is it that singers like Miss Grace La Rue visit us so seldom?

Her clear, beautiful voice charmed everyone from orchestra to gal-

Wilson Intermediate To Put On Operetta

Next Friday afternoon and night, the music department of the Wilson Intermediate school will present the operetta, "The Stolen Flower Queen," under the direction of Mrs. Ettarae Kent and Miss Lois Hanna, with the assistance of Miss Ada Sallstrom. Leading parts will be taken by Betty Goodrich, as the Flower Queen; Leona Pinoges, the Fairy Queen; James Bobbit, Jack Frost and William Grey, King of the Weeds. The story is a fanciful tale of the abduction of the Flower Queen by the King of Weeds and the search for her by her faithful friends and followers.

Over 100 music students will take part in the various choruses. Costumes and scenery were designed in the art and domestic science departments of the school.

STATE GAS TAX

ATLANTA, May 26.—The state gasoline tax of 3 cents a gallon has netted Georgia $845,614 in the first quarter of the year, of which $279,000 has gone to the state highway department for road building.

Without doubt Miss La Rue is the best songstress on the vaudeville stage for her type of work. She received a great hand and was indeed deserving. "Until Tomorrow," "Just a Little Word Was Spoken" and "Honest and Truly" were the hits of her act.

Del Chain and Lou Archer in "Oh I Did Not" was enjoyed by everybody on account of the silliness involved. These two comedians lent a helping hand to Jack Redmond while the latter was displaying his golf ability to the satisfaction of the "country club hounds." People were still laughing after the theatre was closed for the night, so it must have been a good show.

GERMANY AGREES TABOO OF POISON

Country Is Willing To Sign Treaty Barring Traffic In Deadly Gases

BULLETIN

GENEVA, May 26.—America's proposal to prohibit the exportation of poison gases was turned down this afternoon by the military subcommittee of the arms control conference in secret meeting.

Congressman Theodore Burton, chairman of the American delegation, will resubmit the amendment tomorrow at the meeting of the general committee of the conference.

GENEVA, May 26.—Germany is willing to sign an international treaty binding all nations to abandon or outlaw all forms of chemical warfare, her delegates to the arms traffic control conference announced today.

The German announcement came in connection with a move by the American delegates to prohibit the exportation of poisonous weapons of warfare. A resolution to this effect was presented to the conference by Representative Theodore Burton and the German delegates promptly supported it.

The proposal created considerable interest among the delegates, as Germany is blamed for the inauguration of poison gas as a weapon in the World war.

The United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy already have banned the use of poison gas through a treaty signed at the Washington conference.

The HOUSE Of The ARROW

A SERIAL STORY WRITTEN BY A. E. W. MASON
Protected By The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"Did you notice the glass of lemonade?"

"Yes, it was empty."

"Your maid is still with you?"

"Yes—Francine Rollard. She is at your disposal."

Hanaud shrugged his shoulders and smiled doubtfully.

"That, if it is necessary at all, can come later. We have the story of your movements from you, Mademoiselle, and that is what is important."

He rose from his chair.

"I have been, I am afraid, a very troublesome person, Mademoiselle Harlowe," he said with a bow. "But it is very necessary for your own sake that no obscurities should be left for the world's suspicions to play with. And we are very close to the end of this ordeal."

Jim had nursed a hope the moment Hanaud rose that this wearing interview had already ended Betty, for her part, was indifferent.

"That is for you so say, Monsieur," she said implacably.

"Just two points, then, and I think, upon reflection, you will understand that I have asked you no question which is unfair."

Betty bowed.

"Your two points, Monsieur."

"First, then. You inherit, I believe, the whole fortune of Madame?"

"Yes."

"Did you expect to inherit it all? Did you know of her will?"

"No. I expected that a good deal of the money would be left to Monsieur Boris. But I don't remember that she ever told me so."

I expected it, because Monsieur Boris so continually repeated that it was so."

"No doubt," said Hanaud lightly. "As to yourself, was Madame generous to you during her life?"

The hard look disappeared from Betty's face. It softened to sorrow and regret.

"Very," she answered in a low voice. "I had one thousand pounds a year as a regular allowance, and a thousand pounds goes a long way in Dijon. Besides, if I wanted more, I had only to ask for it."

Betty's voice broke in a sob suddenly and Hanaud turned away with a delicacy for which Jim was not prepared. He began to look at the books upon the shelves, that she might have time to control her sorrow, taking down one here, one there, and speaking of them in a casual tone.

"It is easy to see that this was the library of Monsieur Harlowe," he said, and was suddenly brought to a stop. For the door was thrown open and a girl broke into the room.

"Betty," she began, and stood staring from one to another of Betty's visitors.

"Ann, this is Monsieur Hanaud," said Betty with a careless wave of her hand, and Ann went white as a sheet.

Ann, then, this girl was Ann Upcott, thought Jim Frobisher, the girl who had written him, the girl, all acquaintanceship with whom he had twice denied, and he had sat side by side with her, he had even spoken to her. She swept across the room to him.

"So you have come," she cried. "But I knew that you would!"

Jim was conscious of a mist of shining yellow hair, a pair of sapphires eyes, and a face of imperiously lovely and most delicate in its color.

"Of course I have come," he said feebly, and Hanaud looked on with a smile. He had an eye on Betty Harlowe, and the smile said as clearly as words could say, "That young man is going to have a deal of trouble before he gets out of Dijon."

CHAPTER SIX
JIM CHANGES HIS LODGING

The library was a big oblong room with two tall windows looking into the court, and the observation window thrown out at the end over the footway of the street. A door in the inner wall close to this window led to a room behind, and a big open fireplace faced the windows on the court. For the rest, the walls were lined with high book-shelves filled with books, except for a vacant space here and there where a volume had been removed. Hanaud put back in its place the book which he had been holding in his hand.

"One can easily see that this is the library of Simon Harlowe, the collector," he said. "I have always thought that if one only had the time to study and compare the books which a man buys and reads, one would more surely get the truth of him than in any other way. But alas! one never has the time."

He turned towards Jim Frobisher regretfully. "Come and stand with me, Monsieur Frobisher. For even a glance at the backs of them tells one something."

Jim took his place by Hanaud's side.

"Look, here is a book on Old English Gold Plate, and another—pronounce that title for me, if you please."

Jim read the title of the book on which Hanaud's finger was placed.

"Marks and Monograms on Pottery and Porcelain."

Hanaud repeated the inscription and moved along. From a shelf at the level of his breast and just to the left of the window in which Betty was sitting, he took a large, thinish volume in a paper cover, and turned over the plates. It was a brochure upon Battersea Enamel.

"There should be a second volume," said Jim Frobisher with a glance at the bookshelf. It was the latest of remarks. He was not paying any attention to the paper-covered book upon Battersea Enamel.

"I should have taken notice of it but for one thing. It told me that you, Monsieur Hanaud, were coming from Paris to take up the case."

"Oh!" said Hanaud softly. "And you received this letter on the Sunday morning? Can you show it to me, Mademoiselle?"

Betty shook her head.

"No, Monsieur."

Hanaud smiled.

"Of course not. You destroyed it, as such letter should be destroyed."

"No, I didn't," Betty answered. "I kept it. I put it away in a drawer of my writing table in my own sitting-room. But that room is sealed up, Monsieur Hanaud. The letter is in the drawer still."

Hanaud received the statement with a frank satisfaction.

"It cannot run away, then, Mademoiselle," he said contentedly. But the contentment passed. "So the commissaire de police actually sealed up your private sitting-room. That, to be sure, was going a little far."

Betty shrugged her shoulders.

"It was mine, you see, where I keep my private things. And after all I was accused!" she said bitterly. "But Ann Upcott was not satisfied to leave the matter there. She drew a step nearer to Betty and then looked at Hanaud.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE

COMPILED FOR GLENDALE EVENING NEWS READERS

Copyright, 1925, By The George Matthew Adams Service

HOW TO SOLVE THE CROSS WORD PUZZLE
The way to solve the Cross Word Puzzle is to fill in the white squares of the diagram with the words which agree with the accompanying definitions. The definitions are numbered to correspond with the numbers on the diagram.
Any word defined in the text under "HORIZONTAL" will begin at its number, shown on the diagram, and will extend all the way across to the first black space to the right of that number. That is, the word must begin in the square that contains its identifying number, and extend as far as the white squares continue uninterrupted.
Any word defined in the text under "VERTICAL" will also begin in the white space that contains its number, but will extend downward as far as the white spaces remain uninterrupted.

"Have you, Mademoiselle," he asked, "been pestered, since Boris Waberski brought his accusation, with any of these anonymous letters which seem to be flying about Dijon?"

"I have received one," answered Betty, and Ann Upcott raised her eyebrows in surprise. "It came on Sunday morning. It was very slanderous, of course, and I should have taken notice of it but for one thing. It told me that you, Monsieur Hanaud, were coming from Paris to take up the case."

"Oh!" said Hanaud softly. "And you received this letter on the Sunday morning? Can you show it to me, Mademoiselle?"

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Copyright, 1925, By The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Swimming about in a little puddle of water, not far from Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, lived a tadpole. Now a tadpole, as you all know, is a baby frog before it has its legs. When the baby frog comes out of the egg it has nothing much but a head and a tail, and thus it swims around until it grows to be a big frog.

"Heigh! Ho! Hum! This is a lovely day to go adventuring!" cried Uncle Wiggily one day as he hopped past the little puddle of water. And the rabbit gentleman was quite surprised when a voice called to him, saying:

"Please take me adventuring with you! I am tired of staying in this same little puddle all the while. Take me with you adventuring, please, Uncle Wiggily."

"Who are you?" asked the bunny.

"I am a black tadpole," was the answer, and, looking into the puddle, Mr. Longears saw the little fellow who was all head and tail.

"I should like to take you with me," said the kind and polite rabbit, "but you have no legs to walk on the ground, or hop as I do, and I have no fins, no gills and no tail that would help me to swim in the water. You can not yet live on land, and I can not live in the water, so I fear we can not go adventuring together. I am sorry!"

The little tadpole was sorry also, and he would have cried tears, but tears don't show when you are under water all the time. However, as Uncle Wiggily hopped away over the fields and through the woods, the tadpole's mother comforted him by saying:

"Never mind, my dear. Some day you will be a frog, with legs, and then you may hop along with Uncle Wiggily."

"Oh, will I really have hopping legs, like Bully and Bawly No Tail, the boy frogs?" asked the little tadpole.

"Yes," answered his mother. "Some day, soon."

"How glad I am!" sang the little tadpole. "I am going to be good and grow as fast as I can."

So he swam about in the puddle of water, and one morning he noticed that two little legs were sprouting out from under his skin beneath his chin. "Hurrah!" cried the tadpole. "Now I can go hopping with Uncle Wiggily!"

And when the bunny gentleman passed the puddle later in the day, on his way to seek an adventure, the tadpole cried: "Hurrah!"

"I have legs to hop on land now, Mr. Longears! Please take me with you adventuring!"

But when Uncle Wiggily looked in the puddle he said: "You have only two legs, dear Tadpole. You need four to hop with me. Wait a little longer and I will take you."

Little Tadpole was sad, but still he made up his mind to swim harder and eat more and grow into a big frog with four legs. And surely enough, he did. One morning he awakened and he found he had four legs. And lo and behold, his tail had gone! It had been changed into his hind legs.

"Now I can hop over the fields and through the woods with Uncle Wiggily!" croaked the frog, who was no longer a tadpole.

"Yes, but you can not live forever out of water," his mother told him. "You must hop back into a puddle many times a day, and the new little frog boy promised to do so."

Soon Uncle Wiggily again passed near the puddle, and, just as he reached it, out of the bushes sprang the Fuzzy Fox, who wanted to nibble the bunny's ears, not having tried to do so in some time. But as the Fox sprang for the bunny, a voice from the puddle cried:

"Here! You let Uncle Wiggily alone!"

"Pooh! I'm not afraid of you!" snarled the Fox. "You are only a tadpole living in the puddle. You have no legs! You can't even hop out on dry land!"

"Can't I? Well, I'll show you!" cried the voice. And out hopped the frog who used to be a tadpole. And the Frog threw sand in the eyes of the Fox and made the bad cat sneeze so he couldn't see to nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears.

"Oh, I didn't know you would ever have legs to come out of the water with!" howled the Fox, as he ran back to his den. And then the bunny thanked the tadpole frog and took him adventuring over the fields and through the woods. But at night the frog hopped back to his puddle. So this teaches us that you can change a dollar bill into 100 pennies if you wish. And if the pussy cat will dip the end of her tail in the ink bottle and draw the picture of a wagon on the white horse, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the thorn.

"FILLERS"—NO FOOD VALUE

"One way to get thin," a cynic said, "is to eat no food with your meals."

Today I will give you recipes of some dishes which will serve as fillers and which are so low in calories that you may ignore them. They are also aids against constipation. Recipe 1. — THIRICE-BOILED BRAN.

Boil bran for 15 minutes in a large amount of water, at least eight cups of water to one cup of bran. Pour bran into a sieve, let cold water run through it for several minutes, then drain. Repeat three times, then dry bran carefully, unless you use it right away.

This bran may be eaten as a cereal, with some skim milk on it, or it can be made into bran biscuits. Occasionally, if too much bran is taken, it may irritate, so if you find it causes a diarrhoea, take less of it.

Bran, as it is bought in the feed stores, or by the package, has a certain amount of starch in it; therefore, it has caloric value. (Rose lists two cups of ordinary bran as 200 C.) If possible, get some coarse bran at the feed stores, unmix with middlings or sweepings. If it is not possible for you to get this, you can buy the higher-priced bran put up in packages by the cereal companies.

The diabetic food concerns put up a starch free bran. If you cannot secure this starch free bran, then you can free it from starch yourself, in the manner described above.

Recipe 2. — BRAN BISCUITS WITH AGAR AGAR

Bran, washed 1 pound
Agar agar 1/2 cup
1 1/2 oz. (9 level tablespoons)

Water 1 pint
Salt 1 teaspoon
Caraway seeds, if liked.

Wash or boil out starch from bran, as described above. Mix agar-agar and water and cook slowly until dissolved. Mix with washed bran, kneading the bran and agar together thoroughly. Spread in thin layer on baking pans greased with mineral oil, and press smoothly and firmly. Cover with oiled paper and a board or

J. A.: "I have spilled some varnish on a rug. How can I remove it?"
Answer: Buy the regular varnish remover which any hardware store will sell you.

Bride Reader: "How are pressed lamb and pressed meat made?"
Answer: Buy a forequarter of lamb or of veal. Cover with cold water, adding two bay leaves, three cloves, a teaspoon of salt and one tablespoon of vinegar; bring to the boil, and continue to simmer till the meat falls from the bones. Then put the meat into a bread pan in large pieces and put the clean bottom of another bread pan on top of it so as to press it down. Indeed it is best to place it in a flat iron inside this upper bread pan. Let stand in this way till cold, then slice and serve. This is fine for box lunches or picnic use. A smoked shoulder may be prepared in exactly the same way except that two teaspoons of sugar are added in place of the salt and the meat is cooked in the water before being placed in the bread pan to form a cake.

Mrs. F.: "I recently ate a lamb and string-bean stew at a friend's house. I did not know her well enough to ask for the recipe. Do you happen to have it?"
Answer: I think this is just what you want: Lamb-Bean Stew: Into the bottom of a medium size saucepan put four tablespoons of bacon fat. When melted, add to it two peeled and sliced onions and small one cup of cooked lamb cut small (about one pound of the diced lamb, well pressed down in the cup). Let the meat and onions brown slowly, then add two cups of either freshly stewed or canned tomatoes, two large raw potatoes diced, and one and one-half pints of uncooked string beans also cut small. Season with one teaspoon of salt and a dash of pepper. Add one cup of boiling water and then cover the pot and let simmer for from thirty-five to forty minutes. Serve very hot.

I. L. N.: "I am planning to change the color scheme of my bedroom. It is now in old rose and buff and I am tired of it. I have thought of lavender. What other color goes well with this?"
Answer: Yellow or gold harmonizes well with lavender. You might, for instance, have your window valances, bedspread, bureau cover, rug, rug, etcetera, of lavender, and then have yellow candlesticks, a yellow-shaded bedside drop-light, yellow china puff box or pintray on the bureau, and a yellow-painted scrap basket.

Chats On Beauty
By EDNA KENT FORBES

ANSWERED LETTERS

Anxious: It is possible that you may attain several more inches in height, even though you are 19 years of age. Your weight at five feet should be about 110 pounds. The best thing that you can do for your hair to make it grow is to massage the scalp every day as massage circulates the blood and builds up a healthy condition, so new hair will be coming in and your present hair will be improving.

For the dandruff, massage some warm oil into the scalp a few hours before you shampoo your head, and if the dandruff is very bad, use an ointment or oil in which there is some sulphur for the treatment before the shampoo.

Eva—You can help to round out the calves of your legs by massaging them daily with cocoa butter, but if you can add to your weight any it is best to build up all over and you will not need to do anything else.

K. Unknown—I do not know how great an injury there was to the joint, but since you have succeeded in having the bunion cured it is possible that most of the swelling will disappear. You may need something besides the cod liver oil, so it is better to consult the doctor if you do not build up, as you feel that you should after experimenting with yourself for a few weeks.

A. J. H.—A goiter is always at the base of the throat on the thyroid gland. Putting iodine in the water is only one of many experiments to prevent or help cure this trouble. Until comparatively recent times very little was known about the functions of the glands, but it has not been long now before there will be a great deal of valuable information compiled. Age has nothing to do with it.

Seventeen—Flaxen gold hair always changes to a darker shade as you grow up. It would not be becoming to you if it did not change, as the shade is attractive only to children. I should think the streaks would not matter, as your hair shows that it is changing color at this time; anyway, there is nothing that you should do about it.

Miss R. S.—You can bleach the hair on your legs so that it will not show through silk stockings. Apply peroxide each time after you bathe.

Leona D.—A girl of 26 years, height five feet, weight 120 pounds, should weigh about 120 pounds. Peg—Rub salt into the tiny warts on your hands and keep the skin softened by using oil or cream on it daily. These warts are not serious and disappear after a time, even if you did nothing to them.

Tomorrow—Your Dressing Table.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

SPORTS

PIONEER OF WEST IN SPORT CIRCLE

Stagg Brought Football To Chicago; Still Hearty,
But 62 Years Old

By LAWRENCE PERRY
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923.

NEW YORK, May 26.—When an athlete leaves the University of Chicago he carries with him the ineradicable influence of Alonzo Stagg, one of the first of those sturdy pioneers who crossed the Alleghenies into the middle west carrying the gospel of football.

Stagg's athletes learn practical lessons and moral lessons as well. They are the better all-around men for having been associated with the Master of the Midway.

The other day in the Illinois state high school track and field meet, Danville stars won first in the mile, first in the javelin, first in the low hurdles as well as four in that event.

It takes a clever coach to make a showing of that sort, and the instructor in this case was John Thomas, one of Stagg's former gridiron backs and track stars.

Thomas, in Bill Roper's opinion, is the greatest plunger back who ever lived into a line. Probably every member of that Princeton 1922 eleven thinks the same. For Thomas it was whose rushing was mainly responsible for running up 18 to 3 score on the Tigers up to the time of the last quarter of the game at Stagg field.

And in the end it was Thomas, who, having taken the ball in a series of rushes to within a few feet of the Tiger goal, was held from a touchdown by inches, the game thus lost to the Maroon team.

Stagg is 62 years old, but he is still an athlete. Each morning he works out with college players on the university courts and when he isn't otherwise engaged he stands at the plate and straightens out the offerings of the varsity pitchers.

Stagg last winter told the writer a story about Dr. Harper, the great president of Chicago in the early days, the man in fact, who induced Stagg to come to the Midway.

Dr. Harper worked incessantly, took no exercise and thought of nothing but his university duties. Stagg often tried to get him to let down and try the relaxation of sport. But he never would.

Finally when he was stricken with his fatal disease he put his hand upon Stagg's shoulder not long before his death and said: "If I had followed your advice I would not be as I am now."

Portland Labor Body Almost Quits Baseball

PORTLAND, Ore., May 26.—Only a technicality in the bylaws of Portland Central Labor council today prevented that body from withdrawing patronage from Pacific Coast league baseball when the Los Angeles team is playing here.

The council opened a red-hot discussion last night when a communication was read announcing that the new baseball stadium at Los Angeles was being constructed by non-union labor. Sentiment was favorable to withdrawing patronage here, but dispute arose as to whether the council could vote direct on the matter. It was finally referred to the executive board and a report will probably be made next week. The Los Angeles team opens a series with Portland here tomorrow.

KIWANISANS WILL GATHER REWARD

Local Club To Celebrate Its
100 Per Cent Record
With Banquet

Members of the Kiwanis club will reap their reward for maintaining 100 per cent attendance at the ten meetings in connection with the international attendance contest, when they gather tonight at the Oakmont Country club for dinner, starting at 6:30 o'clock. The Glendale club was one of the three clubs in their division throughout the United States to have a perfect attendance record during the contest.

The club was divided into two sections at the start of the contest, one section being known as the High Steppers and the other section being called the Flatfooters. The arrangement was that the losing side was to provide the dinner at the conclusion of the contest. As the contest progressed and both sections turned out in full force for all meetings, the officers and directors of the club announced that if the members turned in a perfect score, the "eats" would be on the officers and directors. The affair tonight will be exclusively for club members, and a surprise program of stunts has been arranged, according to Burton McGinnis, secretary.

School Bond Project Is Under Discussion

system of school government which places the business manager of the schools under the direction of the superintendent. The Board of Education should direct the financial affairs of the schools, he said, not the superintendent.

Chairman H. V. Adams called on Mrs. Barton to explain the needs of the schools and the proposed remedies as embodied in the bond issues. Before she had finished her explanation, Mrs. Barton became the target for questions shot at her by members of the opposition.

Gray wanted to know why a mass meeting of citizens had not been called when the bonds were first contemplated. Mrs. Barton replied that mass meetings in the past had proven failures because of poor attendance and but little interest. Instead, delegates from every improvement association and service club in the city, giving a thoroughly representative group, had been called together. This group, corresponding to a mass meeting, ordered the board of education to call a bond election and suggested a committee of fifteen to determine the amount, Mrs. Barton said.

Temporary Sites
When questioned in regard to sites which would not be used immediately, Mrs. Barton said that with permanent additions built at the present schools and the construction of new schools, twenty-two portable bungalows that are now in use can be moved onto temporary sites, rendering them available for school purposes at any time.

Mrs. Barton further declared that she considered the items included in the bond issues have been set forth under very definite headings, so that there can be no question in the mind of the voter as to what he is balloting upon. Estimates used in getting the costs of buildings and grounds have been carefully made by authorities in building and real estate, she said.

Upholds School Board
Gray continued to protest the board's action in not segregating the various items, however. Mrs. Barton upheld the board's judgment when she pointed out that schools over the entire city are planned and built to conform to a unified scheme. In the event that part of the money should be voted for part of the scheme and not for another part, a highly inefficient condition would result, she said.

Knox protested against the present proposed bond issues because, he said, it would bring Glendale to within 1/4 of 1 per cent of its bonding limit. In this contention Knox was supported by W. A. Goss, Glendale banker. Anticipated increase in the assessed valuation of the city is not sufficient to justify expenditures so close to the margin, Mr. Goss said.

Mr. Goss opposed the school board's method of "anticipating" school needs in advance by purchasing property not needed until later. He urged against "burdening the next generation with unbearable school taxes."

Favors Segregation
Segregation of the school items was strongly supported by George Woodberry, old time resident of Glendale. He recalled a former school bond issue that was defeated in 1919 when placed before the voters in a lump sum. The same issue carried when the items were segregated at the next election, Mr. Woodberry declared.

Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward spoke briefly in favor of the bonds, questioning whether it will be possible to go forward with school work if the issues are defeated.

"The propositions are unfair, unjust, unwise and unreasonable," returned Mr. Gray to Mrs. Hayward's question. "If they wanted to give us a chance, why didn't they separate the issues? We are getting along at present and probably will when the bonds are defeated."

Plea for Bonds
D. J. Hibben, member of the school board, closed the discussion with an impassioned plea for the bonds. He defended the actions of

'CHARLEY'S AUNT' NEVER HAD STAR

Famous Farce, Now Showing
At Glendale Theatre,
Has Unique Record

It is a strange thing, but true, that "Charley's Aunt," the play that has been going continuously for thirty-three years on the stage, has never had a star, and the film presented Syd Chaplin now showing at the Glendale theatre, is the first time the piece has ever been done with a star in the title role.

"Charley's Aunt" has been played in England with 166 different stars, and according to Mrs. Brandon Thomas, wife of the author who now controls the enormous estate which the play has built up, every one of the Charley's has been good.

Actor Proof Play
"Charley's Aunt," according to the producers, is an actor-proof play. By that is meant that it is funny no matter how badly played. This is not said to discredit any of those who appear in the picture, because from the star on down every member of the cast does excellent work.

The reason that "Charley's Aunt" was never advertised with a star is probably due to the fact that it has generally been presented by a stock company in America.

"Charley's Aunt" may be said to be the mother of all farce comedies on the stage and screen. It is the real old-timer that has stood the test of many years of playing. The picture is a real treat. It is the biggest laughing success yet made in pictures with hearty explosions of glee longer and louder than usual.

'INTRODUCE ME' CLOSES AT COSMO

Gilbert The Great Remains
For Another Day With His Unusual Act

Douglas MacLean, starring in his latest comedy vehicle, "Introduce Me," will appear for the last time today at the Cosmo theatre on the big double bill. "Introduce Me" has caused more mirth during the time it has been shown at the Cosmo theatre than any other picture billed by this new playhouse.

Gilbert The Great, hypnotist extraordinary, who has entertained and delighted capacity houses since his first appearance on Sunday, will remain today and tomorrow. He is not only a hypnotist, but possesses a power that has baffled scientists of the world through his ability to transmit magnetism to another person. Gilbert The Great, by reason of this unusual power, renders any small boy from his audience incapable of being moved by the strongest man.

PAINT JOBS FILLED
BOSTON, May 26.—In response to advertisements by the Master Painters' association for men on an open shop basis, painters have flocked here and the association reports that all jobs have now been filled. The Saturday holiday has been abolished.

the school board, which, he said, is working as best it can under the existing state laws to serve the people of Glendale.

"We are working for nothing and getting full pay plus criticism of both a constructive and destructive nature," he said. "I favor mass meetings, but three previous attempts have proven failures. The attempts at mass meetings have gotten out no more representative a body than this meeting of the municipal league. I am in harmony with segregation of the items, when it will treat all schools and districts alike and not work hardships on some sections. Mr. Gray would have the amounts allotted to several schools cut down and the difference spent in his own neighborhood, according to his own statements. That is all right, but it works a hardship on the schools not in Mr. Gray's neighborhood. This incident alone proves to me that we better not segregate the bond issues."

The municipal league met at the Wilson Intermediate school auditorium with H. V. Adams, president of the league, presiding.

BUSTER FLASHES AS GATEWAY STAR

Frozen-Faced Comedian Has
Supporting Beauties
In 'Seven Chances'

Buster Keaton and T. Roy Barnes, famous screen star, are Wall Street "magnats" in "Seven Chances." Buster's latest comedy, which is showing at the Gateway theatre last time today. And between the two of them "Seven Chances" develops into a fun-maker.

Buster has $7,000,000, and some 7,777 women who wish to marry him and his millions in "Seven Chances." Even David Belasco, who produced "Seven Chances" for the speaking stage, roared at the way Buster has transformed his stage comedy into a fun film, and, by the way, it is the first stage production Buster has ever used for film purposes.

Cast of Beauties
Buster's trio of scenicists, Joe Mitchell, Jean Havez and Clyde Bruckman, have "gagged up" the Belasco comedy so that the screen version out-laughs the stage play at every turn.

The cast appearing in support of Buster consists of Ruth Dwyer, his new leading woman; T. Roy Barnes, Snitz Edwards, Jules Cowles, Marion Harlan, Doris Dean, Peggy Pearce, Lora Bara, sister of Theda Bara; Alma Bramley, Detroit belle; Hazel Dean, Pauline Toler, Jud King, Bartine Babbette, Eugene Gilbert, Edna Hammer, Barbara Pierce, Jean Arthur, Connie Evans and Rosalind Mooney.

mobile horn, it tells the world you are coming, and more than that that it helps to provide the fuel to keep on going.

All-Star Bill
"For this aid we are sincerely grateful and especially so to the women of the press who have come to us today."

"I wish to state before presenting the speakers, that a certain vaudeville house in Los Angeles has a notice on the top of its program, which reads like this 'The position of the acts on the program does not denote their value. All our people are stars.' Well, I shall make the same statement. All our speakers are stars and whether their remarks be serious or humorous, if there be a little of the devil in them so much the better."

"Allow me to present the devil." Thus the printer's devil, a jolly youth, in red devil's garb, bearing in black letters "The Press," appeared, giving the following poetic greeting:

Good Morning, folks—Here Am I
The "Devil" of the Press,
Most people do not like me
But I'm not so bad, I guess.
They use me in the office
And kick at me a lot,
But I'm the printer's devil,
So I do not give a jot.
I'm useful there, and useful here,
This I will prove to-day.
So when I call the speakers' names
Get up, and say your say.

He then announced the speakers most cleverly, putting them with such calls as "It's Nye time, it's Nye time, Myra Nye, Los Angeles Times," and "Gee Whitaker Alma, it's your turn, Call for Alma Whitaker!"

The newsmen and printer's devil were Christine, Felicity, Eleanor and Teddy Edwards, talented children of Mrs. J. T. Edwards, member of the club.

Notable Guests
Among honored guests and speakers were Adela Rogers St. John, novelist and short story writer; Alma Whitaker, columnist and feature writer; Estelle Lawton Lindsey, columnist; Myra Nye, Ruth McClintock, Caroline Walker, Grace Frye, Los Angeles newspaper women; Katherine Virginia Sinks, club editor of The Glendale Evening News; Gertrude Gibbs, local newspaper woman; Mrs. E. B. Latham, press chairman for southern part of California federation; Mrs. E. R. Maule, press chairman for Los Angeles district.

Other special guests were Mrs. Blanche Friend Austin, editor of "Federation News"; Mrs. Emily Mann Timmerhoff, circulation manager of "Federation News"; Mrs. Bert Clifford of "California Club Women"; Mrs. Leland Atherton Irish, former district press chairman; Mrs. Charles H. Toll, junior past president of the district.

Adding interest to the day was the club election. The polls closed at 3 o'clock this afternoon, so that results will not be available for publication until tomorrow.

The program this afternoon included a talk by Mrs. Lyman B. Stoeck, chairman of American Citizenship for the district; and music by Keumukou Louis and three other Hawaiians.

SUSPECT HELD IN DEATH OF WOMAN

Accused In Killing, Shooting
And Burning Mystery
Says He's Innocent

BULLETIN

AUGUSTA, Maine, May 26.—Harry Kirby, arrested in connection with the murder of Miss Aida Hayward at Winthrop, was spirited away from the county jail in Portland today and brought to the Kennebec county jail here.

The authorities admitted that they feared open threats to lynch Kirby and every state highway policeman in Maine was mobilized to guard the local jail.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 26.—Harry Kirby, accused of slaying Miss Aida Hayward, shooting her aunt, Mrs. Emma A. Towns, and setting the Hayward cottage at Winthrop, Maine, afire, was arrested in a north-end lodging-house.

Admitting his identity, but protesting his innocence of the crime, Kirby was taken to Newburyport police headquarters. "I am innocent," declared Kirby, according to the Newburyport police. "I found the body of Miss Hayward and took it to the cottage where it was found and put it between the two mattresses."

"I did this to protect somebody else. I'm going to make a full statement later. I wanted to protect somebody, but I won't tell who that person is yet."

Kirby came to Newburyport on Saturday afternoon from Augusta and registered at the lodging-house of Frank Pond.

Pond recognized him from photographs of Kirby in the newspapers and called police. Kirby lay in bed when police entered his room with drawn revolvers. He did not try to escape.

P-T-A

Wilson

Election of officers of Wilson P-T-A. took place yesterday afternoon at the meeting at the school. New officers elected are: Mrs. F. M. George, president; Mrs. H. Park Arnold, vice-president; Mrs. P. A. Olson, secretary; Mrs. A. T. Wintersgill, treasurer; Mrs. C. A. Avers, auditor; Mrs. Fern Lytle, historian; Mrs. Arthur Franklin, retiring president, was in charge of the meeting. She read a letter from teachers of the school to the association, expressing appreciation for assistance during the past year. Announcement was made of the opera, "The Stolen Flower Queen," to be presented Friday afternoon and night at the school by the pupils. Commencement exercises of the school will be held June 19, at 8 o'clock, when Dr. Bruce Baxter will be the speaker. A tea for mothers, whose children will be in high school next year, will be given June 2 at 2:15 o'clock at Broadway High school. Announcement was also made of the federation luncheon June 10 at 12:30 o'clock at Central Christian church. During the meeting a talk on the bond election was given by Bert Woodard. Annual reports were given, the report of the treasurer showing that $40 remained for work next year. The membership chairman reported the membership of Wilson P-T-A. as being 260. The meeting was attended by 200 school patrons and friends. Mrs. Franklin gave a splendid report of the recent state convention held in Fresno, stating that Glendale received more honors than any other city represented. The prize in the room count was awarded to Mr. Innis' room. Mrs. Custer sang two solos "The Veil" (Kennedy Russell), and "Marguerite," an old English ballad, playing her own accompaniment. Newly-elected officers are planning to attend the federation training conference, Thursday, at Venice high school. Mrs. H. H. Harrison on behalf of the board, presented Mrs. Franklin with a past president's pin and Mrs. Merle Morthland on behalf of the board, presented her with a bouquet.

Mrs. Franklin presented Mrs. M. George, newly-elected president, with a gavel. Expression of appreciation to the board, teachers and association members for their assistance during the year, was made by Mrs. Franklin. Mrs. Fanny McNutt gave a talk on parliamentary law.

Your rent + your lot = your home

HOME ownership for you need not be complicated. If you own a good lot you can borrow enough to build. If you pay rent you can carry the monthly payments that give you independence in ten years under the Security Plan of Home Financing.

Your own plans may be used. Your favorite contractor may do the work, provided that all details are approved by Security technical experts. Supervision of construction by Security inspectors guards against the worry and hazards of building. All-cash buying power, made possible by Security methods, may save money when purchasing materials.

Rent alone would cost as much, or nearly so, as the average cost of your Security Loan for ten years. Come into our offices today and let us explain the Security Plan to you. Or send a post card for a free booklet and application blank.
